Youth Determined 380 Foes

By BOB PETERSON

An obstacle greater than Crestmoor Canyon or Sweeney Ridge has to be dealt with before the State Division of Highways can begin construction of an extension of Freeway 380 to Pacifica.

The canyon and the ridge are physical roadblocks to construction of the proposed eight-lane freeway from San Bruno to Pacifica. The project already has the blessing of San Bruno and Pacifica officials.

But 380-Eight represents the human obstacle, a group of determined young people who told The Times yesterday "There is no compromise in store for Crestmoor Canyon."

Mark Forcum, 16, of Millbrae, spokesman for the group, said they intended to circulate petitions to place the matter on a San Bruno ballot.

All the youths, and there are more than eight, are either seniors or recent graduates of Capachino High School. In addition to Forcum, others include Ken Ward 18; John Splivalo and Jeff Graeber, both 17, and all of Millbrae.

San Bruno is represented by Don Phelps, 18, and Joan Hinman, 17. And three are from Foster City; Richard Colvin, 18, Waymone Ho and Robert Solotar, both 17.

Several from this group made presentations as Capuchino Sierra Club members to the San Bruno city councilmen some months ago, urging the scrapping of the 380 extension project.

When their pleas led to a compromise environmental report on the feasibility of constructing the freeway, activity against the project died down.

Forcum, however, emphatically stressed that the group, and other persons he said are as concerned as the group, had not compromised or called a truce regarding 380.

Back in April these young people began a referendum proceeding, giving them six months to gather approximately 2,000 signatures to put the matter to a vote.

Forcum said the initial efforts at that time resulted in less than 1,000 names. But the group has until next month to gather the rest and Forcum said it intends to get them.

At least two of the youths, being 18 and now eligible to vote, intend to become registrars. Prior to this time they could not legally solicit signatures. This was done for them by legal-aged conservation-minded residents.

Forcum also blamed the summer vacation season for a lapse in signature gathering, plus awaiting what they said they expected to be an objective environmental report. It is to them considered a whitewash.

"The environmental study does not give the 'whys' of the freeway, but rather tries to justify a freeway," said Forcum. "The reason for the study was to determine and analyze the environmental impact it will create."

According to the 380-Eight group the study doesn't discount their earlier stand on why the freeway shouldn't be built. Instead it reinforces the anti-freeway position.

Citing the study's referral to "a major unavoidable adverse environmental effect is the Crestmoor Canyon area," the group responded with, "of course this is avoidable if the freeway is not built."

The 380-Eight also questioned whether the freeway would be "an integral part of any watershed." They said they couldn't see a freeway as an integral part of a scenic recreational area.

Another blast by the group was what they called lack of depth in exploring feasible and realistic alternatives to the extension.

Forcum said that a more detailed rebuttle of the environmental report by the state is being formulated.

"If we can get it on the ballot, we will have the people's ideas. If the people want it, okay. But the people should be allowed to choose," said Forcum.

In Pilot's Seat

Happiness Is: San Bruno Boy's Birthday Present

Happiness is briefly sitting in the pilot's seat of a commercial airlines aircraft, then going to the San Francisco International Airport Control Tower and watching that plane take off.

It's a good bet five-year-old Geoffrey Begen would agree to that.

Geoffrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Begen, of 3171 Susan Drive, San Bruno, got this first-class treatment from Japan Airlines Wednesday because it was his birthday.

The elder Begen explained that ever since he purchased a $10 model 747 with the Japan Airlines (JAL) insignia on it his son has continuously talked of being a JAL pilot.

So the father decided he would surprise his son with a tour of a Japan Airlines aircraft as a birthday present.

Bergen called JAL's Public Relations Manager David Grieve to see if it would be possible to take a brief tour of an aircraft.

Grieve arranged to have the boy, his father, and eight-year-old sister Michelle tour a DC-8 jet being readied for a flight to Tokyo.

After a brief tour of the plane Geoffrey was taken forward to the cockpit to meet Captains Toshikazu Oketani and Joseph Stachon.

Wearing a necktie held fast with an airplane-shaped tie tack Michelle said she bought for her dad, Geoffrey climbed into the co-pilot's seat.

After an imaginary flight he moved back to the lounge where he blew out the five candles on a large white cake decorated with the JAL Tsuru good luck emblem.

Captain Stachon also pinned wings on Geoffrey, wings he took off his own uniform.

Geoffrey was then escorted to the airport control tower where he met Norman Merkel, chief controller. After a short briefing from Merkel, the relative silence of the control tower was broken.

"Japan air 21 cleared for takeoff. This is Jeff."

Seconds later the iron bird winged its way past the control tower.

Merkel turned to Geoffrey. "That's what we call OJT (on the job training)," said Merkel. "So I'll now present you with an FAA honorary certificate as an air traffic control specialist. It qualifies you to control traffic at the San Francisco Airport control tower."

Geoffrey smiled.

A Waiting Game on Coast Harbor

The City of Pacifica continues to play a drawn-out waiting game with the county in its quest to obtain a small boat harbor facility.

County harbor commissioners Thursday night told city officials the harbor district is out of funds and has a limited staff with a lot of work to do, primarily with Pillar Point further down the coast.

Harbor district legal counsel James M. Dennis, said once Pillar Point is moving without problems, areas such as Pacifica will move up on the priority list.

He reminded city officials that the district is just now getting back into operation after being reformed as a result of the 1970 elections. The district was out of existence from June of 1966 until August of 1969.

Dennis also said the district has a taxing power that could bring in $500,000 annually, based on a three-cent per $100 assessed valuation.

The commissioners were dinner guests of the Pacifica Park, Beach and Recreation Commission at Nick's Rockaway Restaurant.

Prior to the dinner, the group toured three potential harbor sites; Rockaway, near the Ideal Cement Quarry, Mori's Point and Pedro Point.

Consensus seemed to be that Pedro Point had the best potential. Pacifica Park, Beach and Recreation Commissioner Jean Curry, however, said she was opposed to that site because it is an asset with its natural beauty.

Councilman Nick Gust, also present, continually stressed two points: Pacifica wants only a small boat launching facility, and the city wants it as soon as possible.

"I think that if a small facility is practical and feasible the residents of Pacifica would be willing to support it with a bond issue," said Gust.

"We need direction from you (harbor commissioners) on how we can develop it today. Pacifica is looking for something small. We do have a need for such a facility," he said.

Harbor Commissioner Frank Lee Jr., said the commission has already contacted nine planning engineering companies, experts in harbor facilities, for bids on a county-wide feasibility study of present and potential harbors.

Lee said the commission is expecting replies by September 16. At that time three firms will be selected for interview by the district.

Pacifica officials were assured that this county wide study would include examination of all three of the potential sites in that city.

Cemetery Weeds Growing

The weeds at Olivet Cemetery in Colma are so high they cover the names on the monuments in some sections.

Instead of green, lush grass and bright flowers, a blanket of brown lays over the area.

Until yesterday, Labor Day, some 900 military graves in the veterans' section were no different — weeds, brown grass and wilted flowers.

That's when 50 members of Post 1205, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and their families went to the two-acre plot reserved for their fallen comrades and began sprucing it up.

Under the direction of Post Commander Donald Ellis the group pulled weeds, cut the brown grass, watered the area and placed flowers on all the graves.

Looking around him after putting in a hard day's work, Wallace Levin said, "The grass is now cut and it looks like a fitting memorial to dead servicemen and veterans."

For three months — actually since shortly after Memorial Day — no memorial services had been held in the cemetery. No one had repaired the neglected gravesites.

And no one crossed the picket lines manned by members of the cemetery workers and greenskeepers who walked off the job in a dispute over wages.

The special section was set aside for military and veterans after Golden Gate National Cemetery in San Bruno was filled in June, 1967.

Commander Ellis received permission from labor and management in the cemetery dispute for his volunteer project to maintain the area.

"You know, we haven't had a memorial services, complete al Day because of the strike. We wanted to get services started again before the rains and

D.A. Won't Support Ouster of Greenwood; Strike Due?

By FRANK LaPIERRE

An attempt to oust Jefferson Elementary School District Superintendent Frank Greenwood because of alleged deficiencies during his tenure will not get the support of the San Mateo County District Attorney's Office.

The Post learned of this decision shortly before deadline Tuesday.

Neither side was available for comment on the matter which came to light hours before the JESD held its regularly scheduled meeting.

The exact contents of District Attorney Keith Sorenson's reply to several charges of incompentancy filed against Greenwood by some members of the JESD Board of Trustees are not known.

However, it was understood that in Sorenson's opinion charges concerning events involving Greenwood prior to renewal of his contract by a split motion of the Board last November 29 cannot be used against him.

On November 29, 1970 the Board, in a 3-2 vote, renewed his contract with the district for a salary of $28,000 plus expenses for another four year term.

Greenwood has been JESD superintendent since 1965.

The new contract went into effect on July 1, 1971 three months ago.

Teachers in Quest of Mutual Pact

By WILL THOMAS

The Jefferson Classroom Teachers in Daly City reportedly were prepared to strike last night in the face of a Jefferson Elementary School District Board of Trustee refusal to participate in a mutual policy agreement.

The teachers say they want a "termed agreement," which President Anita Jackson said would guarantee provisions would not be changed without mutual consent.

A group of Daly City parents disclosed yesterday that in the event of a teachers' strike, a public meeting will be held at 8 p.m., today at the Thomas Edison School.

Trustees, who entered into a Memorandum of Agreement last year, declined this year to do so, adopting instead a list of compiled policies, eliminating all references to joint action or decision.

The board agreed to, and has been participating in negotiations on the items with teacher representatives.

Last June the JCTA membership voted to "Withdraw their services" if there was not a satisfactory negotiated agreement by Aug. 31, the date the memorandum of agreement expired.

Reports circulating throughout the community hold that the teachers, meeting last night, would proceed with their withdrawal plans.

Miss Jackson said yesterday that no progress had been noted by the teachers in negotiations. However, yesterday's talks had barely begun, she said, between the Certificated Employees Council members (teachers) and Public Relations, Inc., which represents the Board of Trustees. She said that did not know at noon, what action the JCTA members would take.

In addition to a "memorandum of agreement," the teachers have been pushing for binding arbitration—also not agreed to by the board.

Clinic Has Bus Insurance; Now All It Needs Is a Bus

Our Lady of Guadalupe Health Center, Daly City's new, free health clinic, received a boost toward its goal of providing multiple services to low-income residents of North San Mateo County. The Center received a $1600 grant by the Allstate Foundation of Menlo Park to cover insurance costs for a bus that will be used to transport patients to and from treatment.

Now all the Health Center needs is a bus.

There have been several leads on donated van-type vehicles, according to Mrs. Marlene Espinoza, Health Center Coordinator, but so far none has materialized.

"We're confident that something will come through soon," she added. "Transportation is such a tremendous problem for people with large families who live in outlying areas."

Making today's check presentation were John K. O'Loughlin and Joseph F. Galiardi, District Representatives of the Allstate Foundation, a philanthropic offspring of Allstate Insurance Company, which provides cash grants to various health, safety, civic, cultural, educational and youth groups, along with scholarships for nursing students.

The donation was accepted by Mrs. Espinoza and Mrs. Kathy Eaglestaff, Health Center Coordinator of Community Aides.

Also present were numerous Health Center volunteers and staff — a multi-racial group including American Indians, blacks, whites, and Latin-Americans.

The Guadalupe Health Center is located at 6705 Mission Street, Daly City, (755-9016).

All of its services — which range from pre-natal through chronic disease care, from routine physical exams through psychological counselling — are offered free. Clinic hours are 7-10 p.m., Monday through Friday evenings. No appointment is needed.

The philosophy of the Health Center, according to a spokesman, is to deliver comprehensive health care of, by, and for the people, while at the same time developing training programs and innovative approaches that will strengthen general community resources.

For the moment, a major priority of the Health Center is to fill transportation needs of the communities it serves.

From many parts of North San Mateo County it takes four hours via public transit to get to any clinic. The round-trip fare for a mother with four children may be as high as $9.

At present the center is operating with a loan bus from the Jefferson School District.

Body Found; Crash Hurts Investigator

Coroner's investigators said today that the badly decomposed body of a man found wrapped in a mattress in the wilderness area east of Pescadero yesterday may have been the subject of a "hippie-type funeral."

Coroner Paul B. Jensen said the body of the man, about 25 to 35 years old, was X-rayed yesterday and no signs of foul play could be found.

Coroner's Investigator Joseph E. Keegan, 60, of 40 Caroline Way, Daly City, on his way to the scene, was seriously injured when a 17-year-old driver pulled directly in front of his county car in Montara. Keegan; the second driver, Michael M. Kiely of 314 Hazel Avenue, San Bruno, and a passenger in his auto, Frances Daly, 17, of 16 Idlewild Court, Pacifica, were all taken to Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City with serious injuries. Kiely was cited by Highway Patrolman A. L. Toscanelli for failure to drive on the right half of the highway, causing an accident. Traffic on Cabrillo Highway was tied up for more than an hour.

The body was discovered on White House Road about 1.6 miles east of Cabrillo Highway in the Pescadero area around 1 p.m.

David J. Simon, 17, a San Francisco State College student from Palo Alto, told Deputy John Hammerstrom he had walked his dogs about a half-mile down the isolated road when he noticed a rolled up mattress, tied at both ends, about 18 feet down an embankment.

Hammerstrom crawled down the embankment and found a body in the blue and white pin-stripe mattress. Each end had been tied up with different size Manila type ropes. Hammerstrom said that the knots were the type used by sailors.

Hammerstrom called Inspector Rudy Siemssen, his patrol

How McCloskey Voted

By BENJAMIN SHORE
Post Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Lockheed, ABM, 18-year-old vote, SST, Vietnam withdrawal — these were among the dramatic issues that challenged the House of Representatives in the first eight months of the current session of the 92nd Congress.

But they are likely to be overshadowed by economic issues waiting for the Congress to reconvene this week after a five-week summer recess. It was during the recess that President Nixon announced his economic decisions, and he will need legislation to carry out some of them.

The recess, therefore, provides an opportunity to review the voting by Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey (R-Portola Valley) on selected issues out of the nearly 250 recorded votes cast during the first eight months.

Following is a brief description of the key vote on an issue, the final results, how Democrats and Republicans voted, and how McCloskey voted.

WAGE-PRICE CONTROLS — HR 4246, March 10, extending the President's authority to March, 1972, to freeze wages, prices, and rents, and extending the authority of financial regulatory agencies to impose different interest rates on various time and savings deposits. Passed 381-19. Democrats 225-5, Republicans 156-14. McCloskey—yes.

WELFARE REFORM — HR 1, June 21, an amendment to strike Nixon's controversial Family Assistance Plan from the Social Security and welfare reform bill. Defeated 187-234. Democrats 105-141, Republicans 82-93. McCloskey—no.

REVENUE SHARING — HR 3613, June 2, an amendment to substitute Nixon-style manpower revenue sharing for the Democratic-backed public service jobs program. This vote was considered a test of the Administration's revenue sharing concept. Defeated 182-204. Democrats 23-198, Republicans 159-6. McCloskey—yes. (On final passage, McCloskey voted for the bill, which authorized $5 billion over five years to pay 80 per cent of salaries for state and local government jobs currently vacant for lack of funds.)

EDUCATION — HR 7016, April 7, an amendment to increase the education appropriations bill by $728.6 million for a variety of programs. Defeated 187-191. Democrats 173-42, Republicans 14-149. McCloskey—absent.

SUBVERSIVE CONTROL — HR 9272, July 27, to table (i.e. kill) a motion to instruct House conferees to agree to a Senate amendment barring the Subversive Activities Control Board from using its funds for maintaining and updating a list of subversive organizations. Tabled 246-141. Democrats 100-125, Republicans 146-16. McCloskey—no.

INTERNAL SECURITY — H. Res 274, April 29, a resolution to increase funds for the House Internal Security Committee (formerly House Committee on Un-American Activities) from $450,000 to $570,000. Passed 256-129. Democrats 120-106, Republicans 136-23. McCloskey—no.

C.B.S. CONTEMPT — H. Res 534, July 13, a motion to recommit (i.e. kill) a resolution to cite C.B.S. and its president, Frank Stanton, for contempt of Congress (stemming from the broadcast, "The Selling of the Pentagon"). Recommitted 226-181. Democrats 131-105, Republicans 95-76. McCloskey—yes.

FOREIGN AID — HR 9910, August 3, authorizing foreign aid expenditures of $3.4 billion in fiscal 1972 and $3.5 billion in fiscal 1973. Passed 200-192. Democrats 133-88, Republicans 67-104. McCloskey—yes.

LOCKHEED — HR 8432, July 30, authorizing the Treasury Department to guarantee loans of up to $250 million to the ailing Lockheed Aircraft Corp. Passed 192-189. Democrats 102-129, Republicans 90-60. McCloskey—no.

SST—HJ Res 468, March 18, a motion to delete $134 million for the ST from the Transportation Department budget. Passed 217-204. Democrats 132-114, Republicans 85-90. McCloskey—yes.

SST — HR 8190, May 12, an amendment to revive the SST program by adding $85.3 million to the Transportation budget. Passed 201-195. Democrats 107-129, Republicans 94-66. McCloskey—no. (But it then was revealed that revival would cost far more, and the Senate voted against it, so the House didn't fight for revival in conference.)

ABM—HR 8687, June 16, an amendment to strike $102 million for the ABM from the fiscal 1972 military procurement authorization bill, leaving funds only for continued construction of two ABM sites in North Dakota and Montana. Defeated 129-267. Democrats 100-127, Republicans 29-140. McCloskey—yes.

18-YEAR-OLD VOTE — SJ Res 7, March 23, a constitutional amendment lowering the minimum voting age to 18 in all federal, state and local elections. Passed 401-19. Democrats 237-7, Republicans 164-12. McCloskey—yes.

VIETNAM PULLOUT — HR 6531, June 28, to table a motion instructing House conferees on the draft extension bill to agree to a Senate amendment calling on the President to withdraw all U.S. troops from South Vietnam within nine months after the bill is enacted, if all U.S. prisoners are released. Tabled 219-175. Democrats 83-143, Republicans 136-32. McCloskey—no.

VIETNAM FUNDS — HR 8687, June 17, the Nedzi-Whelan amendment to bar use of any funds authorized in the fiscal 1972 military procurement authorization bill for military operations in or over South Vietnam, North Vietnam, Cambodia or Laos after Dec. 31, 1971, or after some other date during fiscal 1972 which the President might recommend to Congress. Defeated 158-254. Democrats 135-105, Republicans 23-149. McCloskey—yes.

Plea for Tougher Justice

James V. Fitzgerald, chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, said Tuesday that he is going to write the county's judges to ask for sterner treatment of those arrested for drug use.

District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson stated, however, that San Mateo County has one of the toughest narcotics prosecution programs of any county in the state.

Fitzgerald made his statement in the form of an announcement that the new countrywide narcotics task force "means business."

The task force, made up of officers from several county police agencies. ostensibly went into operation September 1. However, the $164,000 federal grant to fund the program has not yet been received, although it has been approved, Sorenson said.

"For the first time in San Mateo County we have a coordinated program with the cities, the state and the Federal Narcotics Bureau to apprehend drug users and pushers," Fitzgerald stated.

The board chairman acknowledged that Sorenson has made it clear that whether it's marijuana or anything else he's going to prosecute, but didn't elaborate on his announced intention to ask the judges for sterner treatment of those convicted of drug offenses.

Sorenson explained that it generally has been the policy in San Mateo County courts to maintain a first offense possession of marijuana arrest as a felony until a defendant has satisfied one-half of the period of probation and possibly served a short period of time in jail.

Once a defendant has satisfactorily served half of his probation he then may move in court for termination of the probation and that the offense be listed a misdemeanor, the district attorney said.

This is possible under a section of the State Penal Code which permits designation of a first offense marijuana possession arrest as a misdemeanor.

"We feel that keeping the offense a felony until the defendant proves he is going to comply with probation is tougher than jail," Sorenson stated, "because he has that felony hanging over his head."

"I wouldn't say the judges in this county are soft on narcotics," the district attorney added.

Aperson convicted of sale of narcotics is as likely as not to get a state prison sentence, he noted.

SSF Housewife Declares War on Bruno Mount Development

While South San Francisco officials are being wooed by interests favoring the development of San Bruno Mountain, a housewife in that city has declared war on the proposal.

Mrs. Bette Higgins, 701 Hillside Boulevard, sitting in the living room of her home, which faces the mountain, said she felt compelled to fight the development.

There is no formal organized effort, but she said she was sure it would not be difficult to rally support for her position.

Her first move has been to issue a two-page "letter to the editor" to all newspapers in the North County and San Francisco.

The first line of the letter reads, "The people saved the Bay, can the people now save San Bruno Mountain?" She noted that it was two housewives who started the Save the Bay movement.

Mrs. Higgins said she realizes that she has a tiger by the tail. She said, howver, "It is time we stood up and took a position on this."

Her position undoubtedly will not be well received at city hall where an effort has been made to annex the mountain to South San Francisco.

City officials recently went to Southern California to tour developments of Crocker Land Company, the Division of Foremost-McKessen, Inc., that has plans to develop the mountain.

"There is little sense in being delicate about the kind of land development threatening to destroy the last open space in Northern San Mateo County," said Mrs. Higgins' letter.

"The greatest reason that these land speculators have been successful is the people have not been heard from," she said.

Mayor Bill Borba said he was unaware of Mrs. Higgins' efforts. Borba is on record as favoring the development.

"I'm for progress of the community. I always have been," said Borba. "If you stop progress you create the death of the city. Seeing it (the mountain) developed would add more beauty," said the mayor.

Four Hurt in Collision

Three girls were hospitalized Saturday following a two-car crash at El Camino Real and Howard Avenue in San Carlos about 2:45 p.m.

Policeman John Marshall reported that a southbound car driven by Laurent Swanson, 17, of 278 Devonshire Avenue, San Carlos, a Carlmont High School student, collided with a car driven by William M. Fairbank, 54, of 141 East Floresta Way, Menlo Park, a Stanford University physics professor, as the latter started into a left turn onto Howard from the inside northbound lane of El Camino.

Fairbank told the officer that a van waiting to make a left turn from the southbound lane obscured his view as he started his turn.

Admitted to Sequoia Hospital with multiple head and facial cuts were Miss Swanson and two passengers, Dianna Kriegh, 17, of 2781 San Carlos Avenue, San Carlos, and the driver's sister, Stacey, 12.

Fairbank complained of hip pain and said he would see his family doctor, Marshall reported.

Authorities removed the body, still wrapped in the mattress, to the morgue at Chope Community Hospital to avoid disturbing any evidence. They estimated the man had been dead at least two weeks.

The man was described as 25 to 35 years old, five feet, eight inches tall, 140 pounds and with medium-length brown hair. He was dressed in blue slacks, medium-size black boots with zippers on the inside, blue socks, and a light colored shirt.

Jensen said dental charts will be taken today in an attempt to identify him, and toxicological tissue tests will be made.

Veterans Day, so we got to work," Ellis explained.

On Sunday, September 12, memorial services, complete with color guard will be held, Ellis said.

Meanwhile, there is no end in sight for the strike which is in its fourth month.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto's hopes of ending the walkout were dashed last week when workers voted almost unanimously to reject a settlement offer.

Ellis said the picketing strikers will not interfere with his color guard raising and lowering Old Glory.

New Panel of Councils Supported

A new political body designed to give city councilmen in San Mateo County more muscle was unanimously supported by the North County Council of Cities Thursday.

Called the County Council of Councils the proposed organization would be made up of mayors and councilmen from all 18 cities within San Mateo County.

It would, in effect, wipe out the present Council of Mayors.

Presently the county council of mayors meeting is attended by 18 city mayors.

The new organization could attract more than 90 elected officials.

Most meetings involving councilmen allow other city officials, such as city managers and department heads, to attend.

After a lengthy discussion on the matter, introduced by Burlingame Councilman Irving S. Amstrup, it was agreed by the members at the Thursday night meeting in Brisbane, not to abolish the North County Council of Cities.

Amstrup said the present method of selecting mayors each year does not give them the power to speak for their entire councils.

In order to make a decision the mayors must first talk a subject over with their councils and then bring it back at a later meeting of the mayors.

By combining a countywide mayor-councilman panel, problems and decisions could be solved on the spot.

Such a body would concentrate more strength when a measure was sent on to elected officials at the state and federal levels, it was stated.$0—MORE

Most North County councilmen agreed that the NCCC should not be disbanded.

South San Francisco Councilman Frank Bertucelli traced the history of the NCCC during the past ten years, explaining the group was formed because "the south end was getting all the action."

One councilman, Daly City's Bernard J. Lycett, admonished San Bruno Councilwoman Margaret Kozkowski after she described the Council of Mayors as a "very sick body of representatives."

"Don't write the council of mayors down because it's a do-nothing organization — a lot of very important appointments (to state and federal jobs) are made (during meetings)," Lycett said.

One councilman said the power in the county was evenly distributed and not in favor of either the north or south sections.

"This isn't a Civil War," Councilman Harold E. Purpus of Millbrae said.

To be an effective group the county must be represented by a united effort of selected officials, and not several splinter groups, Purpus said.

Newly elected chairman of the NCCC, San Bruno's George Corey, instructed Secretary Leo Van Dusen to draft a memo on the subject for further study by the county's mayors.

Rabid Bat Warning Issued In County

Two more bats in San Mateo County have been found to have rabies, bringing the count to three rabid bats in 1971.

The rabid bats were found in San Bruno, Portola Valley and South San Francisco. County health officials assume that all bats are potentially rabid and any bat which is sick and on the ground very likely has rabies and should not be touched. If found, the Humane Society should be asked to pick up the bat so it can be taken to the Public Health Laboratory.

San Mateo County may be declared a rabies endemic area at the next meeting of the rabies control committee in December, officials said. If this is done, then for 1972, rabies vaccination of all dogs will be mandatory before a dog license can be issued.

Dog owners should start now having their dogs vaccinated against rabies if not done in the last two years. Officials said owners should be sure to keep the vaccination certificate. Rabies shots for dogs can be obtained from any veterinarian. There are also low cost rabies vaccination clinics in October and May of each year.

Officials said that since there now are rabid bats in San Mateo County, it is possible that rabies may be found in other wild animals also. The wild animals most likely to have rabies are skunks, possums, foxes and bobcats.

Any person bitten by one of these animals or by a bat should have anti-rabies treatment unless the animal can be killed and brought in for examination. If the animal is examined and found not to have rabies, the person bitten does not need to be treated.

Rats, mice, gophers, chipmunks, squirrels, rabbits and hares are not likely to have rabies and should not be brought to the Public Health Laboratory for examination unless they have bitten someone. There is no risk of rabies from pet guinea pigs or hamsters, officials said.

There has been no rabies in dogs or cats since 1948. Domestic dogs or cats in San Mateo County are not likely to have rabies, particularly if they have been vaccinated. If a dog bites someone, do not kill the dog. Instead, the dog should be confined to the owner's premises or held by the Humane Society for 10 days of observation.

If the dog is healthy at the end of 10 days, it did not have rabies when the bite occurred and the person bitten does not need anti-rabies treatment. If the biting dog cannot be located, the individual's physician, in consultation with the Health Department, will have to decide whether rabies shots are necessary.

Rev. Bergin, D.C. Priest, Dies at 81

Rt. Rev. Monsignor James Bergin, retired pastor of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church in Daly City, died Sunday following a brief illness. He was 81.

A concelebrated mass will be offered Wednesday.

Msgr. Bergin's body will lie in state beginning at 2:30 p.m. today at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church. Rosary will be said tonight at 8 o'clock at the church.

He was a native of Mount Rath, County Queens, Ireland, and studied for the priesthood in his homeland.

Ordained at the Cathedral of the Assumption in Baltimore, Maryland, Msgr. Bergin served in Oakland, Half Moon Bay, Menlo Park, San Francisco and Sebastapol before taking up his post in Daly City. He had lived in the area 55 years.

In 1966 he was elevated to domestic prelate and presented the title of Right Reverend Monsignor on his 50th anniversary as a priest. Pope Paul VI bestowed the honor by special permission.

Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken will be the principal concelebrant at the 10 a.m. mass tomorrow. Interment will be at Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

Cemetery Strikers Rap Arbitration

Striking cemetery workers resumed picketing today after rejecting a proposed settlement last night that would have ended a three-months' old dispute which has postponed burial of more than 1,200 bodies.

A tentative agreement calling for binding arbitration had been reached Saturday between the Cemetery Workers' Union and 11 Peninsula cemeteries.

The terms resulting from arbitration on all aspects of the strike would have remained in effect until December, 1972.

The 235 greenskeepers and gravediggers affected turned down the proposal by about a 12-to-1 margin, according to Maurice Fitzgerald, secretary-treasurer of Cemetery Workers' Local 265.

"We have always been opposed to binding arbitration," Fitzgerald said. 'We had one in 1954 and got burned badly."

Nevertheless, in the present instance, the union's executive board and Fitzgerald himself had recommended acceptance to the membership.

"Nixon's proclamation on wages and prices changed our thinking," Fitzgerald said.

"Whatever contract we came up with, its implementation would be doubtful," he added.

Fitzgerald said he was disappointed that a settlement had not been reached.

He said he did not know when negotiations would be resumed or how long the strike might continue.

Meanwhile, bodies awaiting burial will continue to be stored at mortuaries and, in some instances, in rented warehouse space.

Clifford Fechter of the Crosby-N. Gray mortuary in Burlingame said:

"The strike creates more and more difficulties for more and more people as time goes by.

"It just means that more and more people who have deceased friends and relatives not being buried will be upset for a longer period of time."

Many people who attend funeral services for persons who die during the strike probably will attend services a second time when bodies are interred after the strike ends.

Fechter said that in the interim he does not expect his mortuary to have any storage prolems.

According to a spokesman for one cemetery, it will take at least a month to inter the accumulated bodies after the strike finally is settled.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who had acted as a mediator in the dispute and said he was gratified by Saturday's tentative agreement, could not be reached for comment.

John Cantwell, an Oakland lawyer who has been representing the cemeteries, could not be reached either.

But last week he said that cemetery workers' representatives had rejected an offer for a "21 per cent increase in a three-year contract."

Strikers originally had demanded a wage increase from $34.20 per day to $46 per day, overtime for burial of bodies stored during the strike and a one-year contract.

During the strike, lawns have died and weeds have taken over the untended cemeteries. Some people personally have tended family plots to keep them from becoming overgrown.

Legislators Rapped on Regional Bill

Two state legislators were criticized Thursday for their stand on a bill that would form a new regional agency in the Bay Area.

Senator Arlen Gregorio and Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan made appearances before a meeting of the North County Council of Cities in Brisbane last night.

Ryan said that the bill, AB 1057, was not ideal but it was long overdue.

The problems created by a growing population in the Bay Area has caused monumental problems that can only be solved by regional discussions, Ryan said.

There are now 17 different regional agencies in the area, Ryan pointed out. AB 1057 will hopefully combine these fragmented agencies into one strong body, the legislator explained.

He made it clear he was not in favor of abolishing municipal government.

"I am not in favor of abolishing city government—but I do question the functions of county government," Ryan said.

"I think the role of county government must be defined," he said.

At another point in his off-the-cuff discussion, Ryan said he favored abolishing county government, indicating it was ineffective in dealing with today's complex regional problems.

In 25 years there will be some eight million people in the Bay Area. These people will create many more problems—poverty, welfare, transportation — problems that are already cropping up in the county, he declared.

Both Ryan and Gregorio discussed the latest State Supreme Court ruling regarding school taxes.

Gregorio, while acknowledging that the "handwriting was on the wall" regarding the source of school taxes, said the U.S. Supreme Court may reverse the decision.

When accused by Daly City Mayor Bernard Lycett of "not being receptive to the people," Gregorio countered.

"There is no middleman between me and the people."

"How do we get to you," Lycett asked? "You don't seem to care about what we (councilmen) say."

"You communicate your points of view," Gregorio responded.

"Are you saying you don't care what we say," Lycett repeated.

"I didn't say that."

Other councilmen pressed the freshman senator for justification on his voting record since assuming office.

South San Francisco Councilman Frank Bertucelli noted that "18 out of 19" cities in San Mateo County had asked that AB 1057 be thrown out, "but no one listens."

Gregorio said he had not voted on AB 1057 as yet but that he favored it.

He said agencies must be consolidated to handle the problems of today and pointed to the council's decision to broaden the base of the county council of mayors as a good example.

He said the people of San Mateo County "think the same way" as he does on the subject of regional rule.

But Bertucelli pointed out, "We (councilmen) are closer to the public than you are."

Man Arrested in South SF

A San Francisco man was arrested by South San Francisco police Wednesday for possession of a concealed weapon at the city's Orange Memorial Park.

Booked was Ramon J. Andonte, 40.

Police said Officer Mike Morello was on routine patrol in the park area when he came upon a pickup truck parked near the picnic area.

According to police Morello spoke briefly with the man occupying the vehicle, and in walking away noticed a billy club protruding from under the seat.

Morello called in a back-up unit, received permission from Andonte to search the vehicle and found a .32 caliber pistol in the glove compartment, police said.

Supervisor Gives Cost Idea

James V. Fitzgerald, chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, is proposing that the federal government assume all the welfare costs of the state and that the state take over all the public education costs.

He says this would solve the public school finance problem and give property owners a huge tax reduction.

His proposal follows a State Supreme Court ruling that the financing of public schools by local property taxes is unconstitutional.

In a letter to Sen. Alan Cranston, the board chairman maintains that if the federal government absorbs all of welfare costs of the state, the latter entity would be in a position to assume the total public education financing, and that property taxes in San Mateo County would drop by 64 per cent.

Not only would this guarantee equal education for the states' pupils, but it would leave the counties with more leeway in which to budget for other vital matters, such as open space, Fitzgerald says in the letter.

He notes that the state collects $135,000,000 in miscellaneous taxes in San Mateo County annually, and that the federal government took $380,000,000 in 1968, the latest date for which figures are available.

"We received back from the federal and state governments something like $75,000,000," the letter says.

The board chairman says he sees the best solution for the problem of getting federal funds down to the local jurisdictions is for the federal government to take over welfare costs of the state, provided that the states take over the costs of education of all its children.

Discharge Review Offered

Any former serviceman who received other than an honorable discharge from military service because of drug use can apply for review of the discharge, the county veteran's service office reports.

Veterans' Service Officer Lou Ponciroli said that a review can be requested by application to the discharge review board of the service of which the veteran was a member.

The primary purpose of the change in former policy on drug use discharges is to allow drug users to become eligible to receive medical treatment from the Veterans Administration, Ponciroli stated.

The veterans' service officer said that a review could possibly bring about a change of undesirable discharge to a discharge under honorable conditions for applicants.

Burglary

San Bruno police Wednesday received a report of a $890 house burglary which included theft of cash, guns and jewelry.

Police said the rear bedroom window of Ronald J. Rescino's home was entered sometime Monday. Taken was $40 in bills, $90 in coin, a 9mm pistol with ammunition for the gun and a 12-gauge shotgun.

Peninsula Group Seeks Halt to Animal Overpopulation

A new and yet unnamed group of citizens in San Mateo County announced today that it is attempting to establish here a low cost public cats and dogs spay-neuter clinic similar to one in Los Angeles.

The clinic there is self-supporting. It charges $17.50 to spay a female cat or dog. It charges $11.50 to neuter a male cat or dog.

The cost of these services obtained from a private veterinarian are considerably higher.

Theodore Sorich, a spokesman for the new group, said that a private veterinarian's fee to spay a female cat is about $30 to $35 and about $30 to neuter a male dog, for example.

Sorich said a survey he conducted indicates that the absence of low cost facilities is a major reason why large numbers of people do not have their cats and dogs spayed or neutered.

He said that as a result there are more cats and dogs in the county than there are homes for them. He said strays are presently collected, temporarily cared for, and then destroyed if no one claims them. He said that the financial cost is burdensome to taxpayers and the emotional cost upsetting to people who are fond of animals.

"What's happening is that more and more shelters are getting built, killing more and more animals," he said, "instead of getting at the root of the problem."

He said the basic problem is controlling the pet population, and that a spay-neuter clinic would not only help do this but by doing it would also lower the overall rate of destruction of cats and dogs.

Sorich said his group is now organizing a petition drive to request the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Directors of the Humane Society here to include a spay-neuter clinic in a $1 million addition that is being planned for the Coyote Point Animal Shelter. He estimated that the cost of building such a clinic would be about $40,000.

He said that the next meeting of the new group will be held on Wednesday, September 22, at the home of Mrs. Hobart Johnson, 234 Albion Drive, Woodside. He invited interested citizens to attend.

Sorich also said that citizens interested in helping with the petition drive before then should contact him at his home, 1000 Henderson Avenue, Menlo Park.

Furor Grows Over Meet

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Replays of a tape recording made at the Aug. 23 meeting of the Brisbane City Council has shed new light on charges that council members violated the Brown Act.

Mayor Julius Stern has labeled the charges, made by fellow councilman Dr. S. J. Guardino, a "mild form of blackmail."

It was also learned from the official minutes and recording that all five council members attended a closed door hearing to purportedly discuss a "personnel matter" on August 9.

Councilman Guardino had earlier said Councilman Nick Cook had not attended the secret session.

On Aug. 9 the council retired to the closed door meeting to discuss certain aspects surrounding proposals made by seven engineering firms to oversee expenditure of funds from a Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant.

During the regular meeting Councilman Guardino questioned the legality of going into a closed session to discuss the matter, but joined the other councilmen after being advised by city attorney David Friedenberg it was within the limits of the Brown Act—the law that governs closed door meetings of elected officials.

Although Guardino charges the council reached a decision on which engineering firm to select for the project, Mayor Stern and Councilman Jess Salmon deny the allegations.

"No decision was reached at that time," Salmon said.

With the councilmen attending the August 9 secret meeting was acting-City Mgr. Eugene Aiello.

Aiello gave the city officials a rundown on each firm bidding for the contract.

Exactly what went on inside the meeting is not known.

Minutes of such meetings are not necessarily kept.

But during the public meeting of August 23 a majority of the council decided not to hire the lowest bidder — Iona Consultants — and to contract the HUB project with the second lowest bidder, Resources Engineering & Management Company.

Iona is owned by Brisbane Public works Director M. S. Hetzel.

Some council members feared the city might be hit with a conflict of interest suit if Hetzel were awarded the contract inasmuch as he is also the city's chief engineer.

City Mgr. Aiello assured the council Hetzel had not seen the other bids and would have no way of knowing what amount they were in or what type of work would be accomplished by the other firms.

Guardino made a motion and Councilman Cook seconded it that low bid award go to Hetzel's Iona Company.

After much discussion the council voted the motion down, 3-1.

With Councilman Slamon on vacation, Cook apparently had second thoughts about the contract and voted against it.

A move to table the matter pending further study was asked by Mayor Stern. Again the matter died for lack of a majority vote.

At this point in the public meeting of August 23, Guardino threatened to slap the council with violation of the Brown Act.

The tapes:

"If this council goes ahead . . . and votes in Resources Engineering then I will definitely file charges with the District Attorney of violation of the Brown Act against council members at that meeting (of August 9)," Guardino said.

Mayor Stern accused Guardino of trying to blackmail the council into his way of thinking.

Guardino denied the charge but Mayor Stern persisted and said, "You're not going to blackmail me."

Stern said Guardino was trying to get the council to accept Hetzel's low bid. And if the council did not accept Hetzel's bid "you'll hit us with the Brown Act."

Cook motioned to accept the second low bid and Stern seconded the motion.

A roll call vote was taken and the motion carried 3-1

"Go ahead and file charges — I'm not afraid," Stern challenged Guardino.

At this point Guardino, who also attended the closed door session, said:

"I'm now charging that the District Attorney file charges that the violation of the Brown Act against those councilmen who voted for this motion."

This action would necessarily exclude Councilman Salmon from the action because he did not vote on the issue, however, he did attend the closed door meeting earlier.

Guardino ordered City Atty. Friedenberg to file charges, however, the city attorney declined, noting he would first have to be instructed to take such action on behalf of the entire council.

"I don't know of anything more serious than a violation of the Brown Act," Guardino said.

"I'm extremely frightened," answered Mayor Stern.

Peninsulans to New Jury

Six San Mateo County residents have been included in the newly empaneled Federal Grand Jury in San Francisco by U.S. District Judge William T. Sweigert.

The jury elected Delmer B. McHenry, 71, of Burlingame, a retired Standard Oil Company executive, as the foreman.

McHenry lives at 1620 Granada Drive. He was the western operations manager for land development for the oil company.

Also named to the jury are: Reno F. Bertoncin, machine shop foreman, 2459 Massachusetts Avenue; William R. Duncan, chemist, 15 Woodhue Court, both of Redwood City;

Frank Gonzalez, auto mechanic foreman, of 1233 Brunswick Street, Daly City; Mrs. Elizabeth S. Day, of 2140 Oaks Drive, Hillsborough, and Mrs. Blanche M. McCarthy, of 1219 Bellevue Avenue, Burlingame.

Blood Supply Running Low

Blood donors for all types of blood are urgently needed at the Peninsula Memorial Blood Bank, it was announced today by Mrs. Harvey Boysen, acting administrator.

"Our blood supply is low and the long holiday weekend always brings a heavy demand for blood from the eight hospitals on the Peninsula," Mrs. Boysen said. Anyone in good health from 18 to 66 is eligible to be a donor.

Hours at the blood bank for the weekend will be: Friday, 3 to 7 p.m. Saturday, 8:30 a.m. to 12:30; Sunday, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The blood bank will be closed on Monday, and will take blood again on Tuesday from 3 to 7 p.m. The blood bank is located at 1791 El Camino Real, Burlingame.

Victim Home After Wreck

Frank Jaska, a maintenance worker with the San Bruno Park Department, returned to his home at 258 Acacia Avenue, San Bruno, Aug. 31, from a Grants, N. Mex. hospital after an auto accident last week.

New Mexico authorities said the car in which Jaska was riding was hit head-on by another car crossing the center divider and then rear ended by a third auto. Jaska, 66, and several of his family were returning from a reunion in Houston, Tex. when the accident occurred at Grants.

The others in Jaska's car were treated at the hospital and released.

Are 80 Air Employes to Lose Their Jobs?

A shift of certain aircraft maintenance operations at United Airlines' San Francisco International Airport shops may mean a loss of jobs to about 80 employes within the next few weeks.

The shift had been rumored by certain employes at United's service center, which is a large hangar and aircraft parking area just north oft he airport's main entry roadway. Service center workers now perform light maintenance work, much like gas station attendants serve automobiles.

An airline spokesman confirmed today that certain maintenance work now performed at the service center will be transferred to UAL's main maintenance base at the north end of the field.

The reason is to increase efficiency of maintennace operations and to make better use of the service center and of the maintenance base.

One result, he admitted, would be that about 80 jobs at the service center will be eliminated.

The men who hold those jobs will have opportunities to take other jobs, depending on their seniority, but an actual loss of employment will result, though not necessarily here.

"It means a loss of about 80 jobs system-wide," the spokesman said. "The men who are senior, may bump other men who are less senior, and so on, even if they have to move to other instalations."

Compared to the housands of employes at United's local base, the number of lost jobs will be small, but airport observers suggest that this is just another indication of the industry's continued belt-tightening in the face of economic difficulties.

Industry-wide, the airlines in June reported operating with only 51.1 per cent of their seats filled on domestic flights and they began trimming flights accordingly.

Meanwhile, UAL's $160-million expansion program continues, doubling the maintenance base shop space and providing new hangars for the company's large 747 and DC-10 aircraft.

San Brunans Prepare for Aviation Week Events

The annual San Bruno Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Aviation Week will be conducted October 2 through 10.

In the past years, activities have included tours of jet aircraft and the control tower and scenic flights in jets and small aircraft.

San Bruno merchants have provided window space for displays. There has been a band concert on San Mateo Avenue.

Other activities included an airborne beauty pageant, and there was a banquet with a notable guest speaker.

This year's event probably will utilize most of past activities, plus some additional ones.

Norman Merkel, chief controller at the airport, and also a director of the San Bruno chamber, said "Last year was the biggest and most complete program. It was a real example of what working together can do."

In addition to San Mateo Avenue, the merchants at Tanforan Park Shopping Center are preparing for the week's activities.

Don Frate, public relations director of the center, emphasized that Tanforan was going to complement the activities San Mateo Avenue has produced annually.

"We're willing to give as much space as is necessary," said Frate. "But we don't want the feeling to exist that we have two competing locations (downtown and Tanforan) for display."

Merkel said he was especially desirous of continuing a program, begun last year of giving away a $400 scholarship.

And the committee is waiting for an airline to volunteer the use of a jetliner for the scenic flight. This plane in the past has been supplied by TWA, Pan-Am, American and United.

Commissioner Nominated Again

Granville DeMerritt has been nominated for another three-year term as a member of the personnel commission of the San Mateo County Board of Education.

DeMerritt, a South San Francisco resident, is executive director of the San Francisco Civil Service Employees Association.

A member of the personnel commission since 1966, DeMerritt was nominated for a new term by the California School Employees Association's local chapter.

A public hearing on the proposed reappointment will be held by the Board of Education at its October 6 meeting.

Woman Ends D.C. Fracas

A San Francisco window washer spent the Labor Day Holiday behind bars in Daly City with a monumental headache.

His sister reportedly slugged him on the head with a baseball bat during a three-way family altercation late Saturday night.

George Black, 29, was treated at Mary's Help Hospital for injuries suffered when his sister, Mrs. Stephanie Tookes, used the bat to break up a fight between her husband, William, and her brother.

According to police, Tookes had ejected his brother-in-law from the family home at 100 Higate Drive earlier.

Shortly before midnight, Black, who had lived with his sister and her husband for two months, returned with a 9mm automatic pistol.

The suspect allegedly began pistol whipping Tookes.

After beating him to the floor, Black fired a shot through a window in the dining room and then resumed his fight with Tookes.

It was at this point that Mrs. Tookes grabbed the baseball bat and "tapped" her brother on the head.

Black is being held at city jail in lieu of $15,000 bail for assault with intent to commit murder, police said.

Man Charged

San Bruno police Thursday arrested a 50-year-old man on charges of felony wife beating and assault after he allegedly beat his wife with her own crutch.

Booked was Vagn Hansen, of 401 South San Anselmo Avenue, Apartment 2. Police said Hansen's wife, Lita, was found lying on the floor on her back covered with blood and in a semiconscious condition.

THE MARQUEE

Shirley Booth, one of the grand dames of the theater, credits "economy and contact" as her successful style of acting.

"Young people don't understand you have to be subtle at the top of your voice. The tendency is to read everything into their navel."

More than two decades ago, the deft comedienne who is also an accomplished dramatic actress, was winning her second Tony award. Today she's still garnering rave reviews in the Phoenix-ACT co-production "Harvey" at the Geary through this weekend.

"I feel every part should be a coin with two faces. Emotion sounds a depth that people respond to. Plays should be team efforts, not just vehicles."

"I've always said that acting should be overheard, not listened to. I used to say to the kids in 'Desk Set,' let's have so much fun at our party the audience will be sorry they didn't come."

There is an infectious lilt to her voice and her facial expressions during a luncheon interview are like a course in acting. Any student of the theater could learn from the gracious lady by watching how she employes "economy and contact" onstage with Gig Young as her slightly crackpot brother.

This is the second famous twosome who have brought the Mary Chase play back to audiences' hearts. Last year on Broadway it costarred James Stewart and Helen Hayes.

Director Stephen Porter explained that Stewart wouldn't tour and had only consented to be in the revival because "he didn't like his impression in the film version and wanted to wipe that out by doing the play."

"He felt that being so much younger than the character he played he resorted to eccentricities he didn't need."

This is Miss Booth's fourth visit to San Francisco in a hit show. Past roles include "Desk Set," "Come Back Little Sheba" and "Philadelphia Story." She is considering a comedy for New York when this tour ends of a play written by comedienne Dody Goodman about her grandmother, "Mourning in a Funny Hat."

She was ecstatic over the service received at the Raphael, formerly The Fielding, because they allowed her to keep her poodle dog.

"Acting is a lonely life. None of the other hotels would let me in. My dog is beautifully trained and it's better than traveling with a gigolo."

The petite actress was first married to Ed Gardner with whom she appeared in "Duffy's Tavern." She's been widowed from her banker husband since 1954.

"People still think I'm doing 'Hazel' for television. Actually I haven't done that in four years. It's all reruns. It was first presented to me as a play and I had always been amused by the character in the 'Ladies Home Journal.' But it wasn't a good play."

"I hadn't been on television except for Playhouse 90 and when they reoffered it as a series I liked the fact it had common sense, humor and directness.

Was coming back to the legitimate stage much of a change or problem?

"Well, I'm the paraphrase queen. I know my thoughts and say them in my own words. The authoress said it was all right because I was so much like the lady she wrote about, she gave me license to rewrite," she said coyly with a wink.

Growing Plants, Flowers Intriguing to Young Children

Children are amazed, usually, over watching such things as plants and flowers grow and helping to care for them.

Not everyone has a garden or the time to go into extensive lessons in horticulture with their children but even families in apartments may show their offspring the miracle of growth.

The easiest way to see both the above earth structure of plants as well as the root structure is to grow beans in a glass jar. Cut a sponge so that it will fill a pint size mayonnaise or pickle bottle. Pour in water until the sponge can absorb no more moisture and then slip one or two dried beans between the wall of the jar and the sponge. Sit in a light spot where the jar can be in the light but not in the direct sunshine. Keep the sponge moist at all times and before long young, sharp eyes will notice that the beans have split open and that green leaves will soon be emerging from the bean.

AVOCADO AND SWEET POTATO are two more plants that children have fun watching. Force tooth picks into four sides of the avocado and suspend the broad side of the seed downward in a glass of water. Be sure that the bottom inch of the seed is never out of the water and within a very short period you will have a becoming broad leaved plant.

Use the same method with a sweet potato and watch it split, sprout and begin to climb. Once rooted the avocado and the sweet potato will make durable house plants with attractive leaves but they will loose most of their peculiar fascination for the children once they are set into pots.

Carrots, too, will perform beautifully for young eyes if the top half inch of the carrot is put, cut side down into a shallow container with enough water to cover about half the carrot. Feathery green leaves, resembling fern, will sprout from the top within a matter of days if the pan is set on a window ledge where it can have sunlight but not direct sunshine.

The Venus fly trap is a rather exotic plant which can be purchased for less than forty cents from a number of nurseries and its strange behavior has a compelling fascination even for adults. About once a week fringed dishlike "flowers" open and if you drop a fly or small insect onto the open "dish" the trap will close and remain shut until the plant has absorbed the insect.

If you prefer the more conventional types of plants for your child's garden help him build a miniature green house and start some seeds for winter blooming. Sweetpeas are always hardy and next week won't be too early to begin seeds for Christmas blooming.

SLICE A HALF GALLON milk carton in half, lengthwise, prepare soil per the instructions on the seed package and plant the seeds the appropriate depth. Water thoroughly and immediately slip the milk carton into a clean, gallon size plastic bag., twist closed and sit the little hot house in a window where there will be sunlight but very little direct sunshine. There probably will be no need for you to worry about watering the seeds until after they are well sprouted as the closed plastic holds the moisture in unless the bag is opened or torn. When your seeds reach the proper size for transplanting they can go directly into the yard as healthy, well established seedlings. When the flowers arrive the youngsters will feel a very real sense of accomplishment and pride at their handiwork

Radish seeds can be planted in used styrofoam coffee cups, enclosed in a plastic bag until sprouted. The seedlings must be thinned to allow for proper space for development, and set in a window where they will grow large enough to furnish junior with a fresh vegetable snack, right from his own garden!

Many things are possible, on a small scale, which will be educational and fun for budding young gardeners. Perhaps you can attempt a terrarium or a little rock garden but for such ambitious undertakings be sure to talk with a nursery man first so that you can avoid disappointing your child.

Two Youngsters in Millbrae 'Unenchanted Prince' Play

The current Millbrae Players production, a fantasy called "The Un-Enchanted Prince" boasts two young Peninsulites.

Bob Gonnella, 14, lives at 145 Acacia with his parents, one brother and six sisters.

He's a quiet spoken, serious minded boy and displays excellent powers of concentration for someone so young.

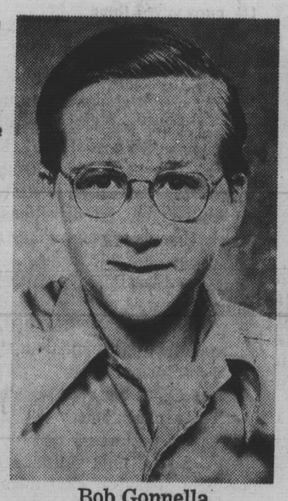
A serious student of piano for four and one half years, he already has proven himself a first rate musician and provides piano background to the musical being staged weekends at the little theatre in Millbrae.

Someday, he says, he'd like to be a concert pianist or maybe a conductor.

In the meantime, he's playing the organ at St. Robert's Church in San Bruno and has composed a mass for soprano-alto-tenor-bass choir with organ accompaniment.

He plays for Sunday services, occasional weddings and funerals, and has gotten jobs playing at other parishes through referrals of people who have heard him.

Bob starts Capuchino High School and will play with the school orchestra this fall.



Bob Gonnella

Jeffrey Pels

Early in July he answered the Players' call for musical accompaniment to the new show they were rehearsing. He swiftly mastered the entire score of the musical, releasing composer and musical director Jeff Colton for other important duties, and establishing himself as a competent, thoroughly reliable member of the musical staff.

Jeffrey Daryl Pels, 8, of Burlingame, is the youngest member of the Players' cast.

In the "Un-Enchanted Prince," Jeffrey plays a cameo role, appearing on stage for a short time with Director John Rechtfertig in a sequence that has an authentic Laurel and Hardy flavor.

Residing in Burlingame, Jeffrey has been appearing in neighborhood children's plays.

In the first play, a murder mystery that ran for one week and grossed $13, he told impromptu jokes while the cast repaired a curtain that had unexpectedly come down.

In another play at a college alumni grape festival in Hillsborough in July of 1970, he played a slow-witted court jester who was smitten by a sultry lady-finger grape.

Highlands PTA Honors Faculty

A menu featuring an entree of Ukranian culinary flair was served Sept. 7, at the Highlands School multi-purpose room by Mrs. Donald Griffin, P-TA president, and the P-TA Executive Board.

The luncheon honored David Bratt, principal, the faculty and staff members.

Others invited were Millbrae District School Board member Remo Boragno and district specialists Mrs. Lennis Hansen and John Anderson.

Mrs. Warren Moresco was chairman of the luncheon, assisted by Mrs. Thomas Shea.

Mr. and Mrs. La Franconi, owners of the La Franconi Dairy in Santa Rosa, also were guests. They have for many years offered their dairy as a field trip experience to second graders.

The La Franconis have shown the children all facets of the dairy including hand-milking, automated milking machines, farm-animal life, and working farm equipment giving many of the children their first opportunity of spending a day on the farm.

At the close of the last school year the P-TA made plans to have their first Highlands School Festival on Oct. 30, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

During the summer months different committees have been organized. The general chairman of the affair is Mrs. Roy D. Caldwell assisted by Jim Kailas, sixth grade teacher. Each classroom will be represented by different booths and parents and faculty members will be helping throughout the day. There will be a circus theme and the festivities will begin with a costume parade that is open to all children in Millbrae.

A token award will be given each child who participates. Skill and chance games will be played and of special interest will be a Mystery Booth of all new or unused items, a ' white elephant" booth and an arts and crafts booth. A snack bar will be open throughout the day.

Proceeds from the event will go towards educational aids for the Highlands School children as well as a portion to be donated to the co-ordinating committee of Millbrae School District, which gives assistance through student aid to qualified, needy children.

MRS. ALBERT WILSON shows a striking array of floral color and fragrance in her Daly City "Garden of the Month." The garden of the Westlake home makes dramatic use of small space,. Sections of concrete pipe form her planter-pedestals for colorful blooming annuals, while the fence and border hedges contain plantings which range from herbs to trees and shrubs, above, below. NELL NORTON

Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.

I've decided that pie is my favorite dessert. With the recipe testing I've been doing lately, pie is also becoming my favorite entree. You may agree with me after you've made this easy to fix, tasty and most attractive hamburger pie.

OLIVE HAMBURGER PIE

1 pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
2 Tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 Tablespoons catsup
½ cup sliced stuffed olives
1 unbaked 9-pinch pie shell
1 cup cottage cheese
2 eggs, slightly beaten
Paprika

In skillet brown the pound ground beef and half cup chopped onion; drain off any excess fat. Blend in the two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon salt, fourth teaspoon pepper, and three tablespoons catsup and the half cup sliced olives.

Spoon into pie shell. Combine the one cup cottage cheese, and two beaten eggs. Pour over meat mixture. Sprinkle with paprika.

Bake in 350-degree oven 35 to 45 minutes or until set and top is lightly browned.

Serves six.

EASY PIE CRUST

1½ cups sifted flour
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
2 to 3 Tablespoons water

Sift one and one half cups flour and one teaspoon salt in bowl. Cut in the half cup shortening. Sprinkle in the 2 to 3 tablespoons water, stirring with fork as you add water. With fork or fingers mix until dough holds together. Shape into a flat round. Place between two pieces waxed paper. Roll from center out to edge in all directions forming circle about 1½-inches larger than 9-inch pan. Place in pie pan and flute edges.

AN OLD-TIME RECIPE for an apple cake turns out a delicious dessert.

HURRY-UP APPLE CAKE

2 cooking apples, medium size
4 Tablespoons sugar
one-eighth teaspoon cinnamon
2 Tablespoons butter

Line a buttered 8-inch round cake pan with the two unpeeled apples sliced thin. Sprinkle with the four tablespoons sugar, one-eight teaspoon cinnamon and dot with two tablespoons butter.

BATTER

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup sugar
3 Tablespoons margarine
½ cup milk
1 egg

Sift the one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder and half cup sugar in a small mixing bowl. Drop in the three tablespoons margarine. Mix at low speed for 1 minute. Add the egg to the half cup milk and pour into flour mixture. Beat at medium speed for two minutes. Pour over apples. Bake in 350-degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until cake tests done. Serve warm with whipped cream.

Proclaimed by Governor Reagan in 1970 as California Square Dance Week, the event has now become a National Square Dance Week.

Several hundred square dancers from the San Francisco-Peninsula area will celebrate the second annual Square Dance Week with demonstration dances at Serramonte Shopping Center on September 11 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The San Francisco square dance clubs participating: Bachelor & Bachelorettes, Krazy 8's (teens), Cable Car Squares, Pony Wheels, Caper Cutters, S. F. Rebels, Cloverleafs, Square Cutters.

New Math Made Easy For Parents at Home

To clear the road to understanding "new math" and to make elementary mathematics homework more of a pleasure for both parents and child, Skyline College is offering a Community Services short course this Fall, entitled "New Math for Parents."

The course will be taught by John Savage at Parkside Intermediate School in San Bruno for eight consecutive Tuesday nights, beginning September 28. The class meets from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 1 and carries one unit of optional college credit (Math 149).

Savage, the principal of Carl Sandburg Elementary School in San Bruno, is a parent who has had extensive experience providing that "new math" is neither as new nor as complex as it seems at first exposure.

In this course he will cover some of the newer concepts such as sets, rotational numbers, other bases and geometry, as well as explaining how these are integrated into the modern elementary school curriculum.

Interested parents may begin enrolling immediately by sending a check for $5 to the Community Services office, Skyline College, 3300 College Drive, San Bruno, Calif., 94066. Class size is limited, so preregistrations will be processed as they are received. Registration will be taken at the door on September 28 if space is still available.

Cooking Classes Set at Woodlake

Recipes and menus appropriate for the fall and holiday season will be taught in a series of gourmet cooking classes starting October 13 at the Woodlake Spa.

Pecks Gourmet Cookware of Burlingame is sponsoring the course which will be taught by Mrs. Janet Eswein of Hillsborough. The instructor has taught five other cooking series at the same locale and demonstrates basic techniques for both beginning and experienced cooks.

To assure individual instruction, the class is limited to 15 persons. Tuition is payable to the Spa Office or at Pecks and registration begins tomorrow.

Cheese Shop on Exhibit

Hickory Farms of Ohio, with more than 180 franchised cheese stores in operation throughout the United States and Canada, has been chosen to operate a typical Middle American cheese shop in the United States exhibit at the "Man and His World" exposition in Montreal.

The presentation is part of a display produced by The Smithsonian Institution. Featured are the assortment of natural cheeses produced in the midwest.

Hickory Farms is represented on the Peninsula with branches at Tanforan and Serramonte shopping centers, and a third outlet will open shortly on the Hillsdale Mall, marked by the chain's familiar red barn facade.

High School Athletics Cost District $338,000

It cost the San Mateo Union High School District more than $338,000 during the last fiscal year to finance its interscholastic athletic program. That figure is almost two per cent of the district's entire budget.

And, according to a report on the cost of athletics issued Thursday night to the district's Board of Trustees, less than 3,300 of the district's 12,000 students participated in that organized sports program.

The report, prepared by Dr. Carl Hammer, district deputy superintendent, and Curtis Wilcox, a San Mateo High School administrator, showed in some detail the kinds of costs which, until now, have been hidden.

For example, the report took into account coaches' released time, overtime paid to people like groundskeepers and janitors and the maintenance of playing fields. However, the report did not include the initial cost for capital outlay.

The greatest single cost factor in the study proved to be coaches' released time which was figured to be $198,000. Released time is defined to be compensatory time off.

The report also noted that, contrary to a widely held belief by many coaches in the district, night athletic events (and specifically football games) are not the moneymakers they are touted to be.

The report stated that a comparison of revenues and costs for eight night football games last fall showed a final deficit of about $250.

A major reason for the high cost of athletics to the district, the report said, is the fact that the district is using a new method to give the seven high schools financial support for their sports programs.

Beginning last year, financial support was divorced from the sale of student body cards and all receipts from the sale of those cards went to non-athletic activities of the students.

Gate receipts, season ticket sales and district subsidies then became the sole means of financing athletics.

With this new arrangement a number of disappointing factors emerged to force the district to come up with more than $63,000 in support funds for direct operational costs alone, Dr. Hammer said.

The report revealed that the seven high schools could sell just 188 season tickets last year.

The report did not contain attendance figures.

The last year ended with a total minus balance in the athletic account of just over $8,000, Dr. Hammer said.

In 1970-71, he said, district support increased to 55 per cent of the direct expenditures for athletics. A comparison of prior fiscal years showed that the district's contribution was 42 per cent in 1967-68, 41 per cent in 1968-69, and 48 per cent in 1969-70.

Besides the cost factor, the members of the board expressed concern about the seemingly low number of students (all of them boys) who participated in the sports program.

The 3,300 figure does not take into account those students who participate in more than one sport. In addition, the lack of a girls' athletic program (other than physical education and "play days") also came in for some questions by board members.

Trustee Evelyn Grant said she wanted to see an accurate count of the precise number of individuals actually involved in interscholastic sports.

Board chairman John McCloskey agreed and said he too wanted to see a count of the students who actually partake of the program.

Trustee Dr. John Linn said he wanted the administration to examine who benefits from the sports program and to study how the program might be expanded to include more students, especially girls, without increasing the costs. He particularly wanted a report at some later date on how a better intramural program might be developed.

Dr. Linn said he was not recommending that the district do away with athletics but he did say the board might need this type of information in the future if the district must cut costs due to the State Supreme Court's recent ruling on equalizing the tax money spent on education per pupil throughout the state.

Trustee Dr. Joseph Craig praised the work of both Dr. Hammer and Wilcox and said the report was good groundwork for future studies in that regard. He said he was somewhat surprised to see that night football games were not profitable and he expressed interest in the fact that the report noted there was also no apparent relationship between having a home football field and making money off the sport.

District coaches have come before the board in the past and urged that the district add lights to at least one more football field (preferably Capuchino) and that all school shave a home field of their own to play on.

Dr. Craig said he thought the per athlete cost of $90 to $100 was a good investment in the light of the afterschool problems that many young people now ave.

District Superintendent Dr. A. Hugh Livingston said the fact that the sports figure is less than two per cent of the total budget shows that "sports is not the all-consuming activity that some people would have you believe it to be."

He added that he too was concerned about the lack of a girls' program.

The report was for the information of the board only. There was no action taken on it.

Big Deal Over Comebacks

Been thinking about the big deal many of the experts made over Cassius Clay's comeback after a long layoff, and how so many of them said that no athlete can ever come all the way back, no matter what his talent, after years off the job. "Never" is a big word, and when you think about it, that apparent truism just doesn't wash.

Just off hand we can think of Joe Dimaggio, who missed three full seasons during the war years, and came back with a .290 batting average, 25 homers and 95 RBI's — not quite up to Dimaggio standards in those days true, but a good year followed by four consecutive better ones. Bob Feller came back after three years in the Navy, posted a 5-3, 2.50 ERA record at the tag end of a fourth season almost completely missed, and then the next year, in '56, led the league in games pitched (48), innings pitched (371), wins (26), had an ERA of 2.18, and set a strikeout record (348).

It was, generally, probably the best year he ever had. Stan Musial missed a season in 1945, and came back in '46 to lead the league in hitting (.365), runs scored (124), hits (228), doubles (50), triples (16), and chipped in 16 homers and 103 RBI's. That was one of the greatest years any hitter EVER had.

Champion come-backer of them all, of course, was Ted Will liams, whose career was interrupted three times by military calls. He came back after three years off in WW II to hit .342 with 38 homers, 123 RBI's and a league leading 142 runs scored. after missing most of both the '52 and '53 seasons (abbreviated affairs in which he hit .400 and .407, he came back in '54 to hit .345 to go along with 29 homers and 89 RBI's in just 117 games. And Ted was 36, on top of it, not a man coming back still more or less in his prime physically.

Now, you may be saying yeh, but these guys were baseball players, boxers are different. Maybe so, but check what Joe Louis did after nearly a four year lay-off during WW II.

You can talk all you want about the jaded professional athletes who are just out for the money and left the rah-rah back in school, but anybody who thinks it's just money that motivates men who play children's games is naive.

Take, for example, a game between the A's and Yankees last month. Vida Blue pitched, and won, 6-4, but Blue was clobbered about as well as he has been all season, and it took a last inning A rally to save it for him.

But during the course of a four run Yankee rally in one of the late innings, you would have thought you were witnessing one of the old Dodger-Yankee World Series. Second year man John Ellis pinch-hit a double and drove in two runs, and after he reached second base he threw his hands up over his head and danced around the bag, ala a fighter just having won a championship.

There followed another pinch double, also driving in a pair, by 13 year man Ron Hansen. You could see the grin on his face as he rounded first, and it grew wider until he reached the dug-out (after having been removed for a pinch-runner), at which time it erupted into a shout and a leap into arms of teammates who pummelled him like he was Bobby Thomson in 1951.

The Yankees, not even in the same division as the A's, were, are, hopelessly out of the pennant race in their division, and they certainly wren't deterring the A's in their pennant quest. But that game, that game against the best in baseball, Vida Blue, in front of a capacity Yankee Stadium audience, broughtout the pride, the competitive spirit that drives professional athletes to reach the top of their field.

That is the difference between a great athlete in the bush leagues or driving a truck, and a great athlete in the big time.

WE INTERVIEWED Alan Gallagher in 1965 just after he had been drafted by the Giants but before he had signed with them for his reported $50,000 bonus. At that time Jimmy Ray Hart was apparently solidly placed at third base, and we asked Gallagher what he thought his chances were of eventually ousting Hart from his position.

Gallagher, fully of confidence even then, replied, "Hart's a real good hitter, but then if I'm going to let that worry me, I might as well give up. If you don't have confidence in yourself you never get anywhere."

When Alan finally broke in with the Giants last year, he did it without benefit of a duel with Hart, because Jimmy was incapacitated with the bad shoulder. Again, in spring training this year, there was no real competition with Hart for essentially the same reason.

But in July Gallagher was going bad, in fact, he was hardly even going at all, because Hal Lanier was playing third base. And then Alan got back in the lineup and had a couple of good days, but Hart was recalled from Phoenix, anyway, in what was apparently a follow-through on a previously conceived plan. Finally, the duel was set. But it never came off because Gallagher just kept going, getting better and better, and Hart, the few times he did get in the lineup, couldn't get going.

The moral of the story is that Gallagher, true to his 1965 philosophy, just didn't let Hart worry him.

A READER, WHO WISHES to remain anonymous so that his friends won't know that he reads this column, wonders why scorers almost always give batters hits when a ball sticks in infielders' glove. He contends it should be an error. And he may be right. After all, if a guy doesn't know his own glove well enough to know how to quickly extract a ball from it, well then, maybe it's a mental error if nothing else.

ONE LAST SUDDEN though left over from the summer: one thing about TV'd baseball during the summer, there are no reruns. Except, of course, instant replays.

FOR THOSE WHO like the business side of baseball: Most clubs make it on concessions or go broke. For every dollar in paid admission, the operating cost of the club is $1.06. Concessions make up the other 6c, or more, if the club is to make a profit.

The top concessions outfit is the Stevens clan, (the one which works out of Candlestick), which operates under the corporate title of Harry Mosley Stevens, Inc. Harry Mosely, etc., arrived in the United States in 1879 from England with one pound ($5), invented the hotdog in 1897, and flourished. Stevens alone employs around 4,000 people on an average summer day.

In the average big league ballpark, the total yearly consumption includes 700,000 bottles of pop, 800,000 hot dogs, 500,000 slabs of ice cream and 400,000 bags of peanuts.

IF YOU DON'T THINK San Francisco State is a genuine simon pure football school, check this item: Gator coaches, including head man Vic Rowen, reported early to help student trainer Art Fanfella completely refurbish the football field house — painted floors and walls, fluorescent lighting, framed pictures, etc.

That has to be the S.F. State Project of the Year. The field house is probably the oldest, dreariest building on campus.

And could you imagine Woody Hayes of Bear Bryant wielding a paint brush to make their players' environment more pleasant?

ANOTHER READER, who must remain anonymous because he can't remember his name, has two golf questions. He wants first to know how the expression "Mulligan" originated. If any among you throngs of readers know, write to us. Needless to say, we will keep you anonymous if that is your wish. The other question is why golf tournaments are called, for example,a "$150,000 tournament," when in reality, top prize money is only $30,000. The reader understands that the $150,000 claim represents total prizes, but thinks it's misleading and improper. We agree.

A golf question of our own — a rather obtuse one, we admit, but which should be picked up by the sports intelligentsia — when are golfers going to start wearing baseball gloves?

RETRACTION: A few weeks ago we congratulated former Pacific Coast League and major league pitchers Bert Cole on his 73rd birthday.

It was actually his 75th, which is what an informed source had told us to begin with. But like all good reporters — and this should be an object lesson for all good reporters—we double-checked the record books and discovered that according to every existing baseball record book, Cole was 73. They couldn't all be wrong, we rationalized.

Turns out they WERE all wrong, because Cole lied about his age when he first entered the game. "We all knocked off at least a couple of years in those days," says Bert, "so that when we got near the end of the line we could hang on past what many clubs considered retirement age and when we were beginning, so that we would seem to be more mature men rather than just kids."

TAG END: If some of you Giant fans are still upset about the logic behind that George Foster trade, the inside word is that Foster is considered fragile.

S.M. Schools Study Jobs

A proposed application authorizing San Mateo City School Ditrict participation in the federal emergency employment program will be considered by district trustees at a regular board meeting Tuesday in the board room at 50 Peninsula Avenue.

The tentative proposal seeks $201,000 for 32 additional instructional aides and other maintenance, clerical, delivery, purchasing and budget employes.

Under the Emergency Employment Act of 1971, the City of San Mateo was allocated $236,700 to provide jobs in public agencies for residents currently unemployed or underemployed.

Also under discussion will be a proposed evaluation by Stanford Research Institute of the open structure and personalized learning program at George Hall School; an application for continuation of the Title I program for "educationally deprived" students; and a proposal to grant salary credit for extension courses conducted by district certificated personnel.

It's Rehearsal Time for Beauty Candidates

By SUSAN JEAN DAMANTE

Carolyn Stoner of Belmont, California's entry in the Miss America pageant finals Tuesday wore a bright orange blouse, green bolero vest, green shortpants skirt and a big smile as she began day-long rehearsals with the other state winners.

The girls were a bit taken aback on Monday when they found out that the hostesses had banned hot pants on stage for all but rehearsals.

"They cast uncomplimentary shadows," they were told. The hostesses spoke up after looking at photographs taken the first day.

Newsmen had photographed the girls on the merry-go-round, eating cotton candy, and strolling on the boardwalk. Carolyn strolled for some time down the seven-mile boardwalk and finally "just wore out."

She didn't look it this morning. She's beautiful and happy as a lark.

Her arrival here brought her together with Cece Sklan, Miss Arizona, who competed in the Miss San Mateo Pageant last year. They rode down together from Philadelphia in the limousine, and had a great time swapping reminiscences about the county.

She is very confident about her talent — the dance and acrobatic number she does. "I rehearse it at 1 p.m. Wednesday," she said. "Then I'll perform in the show with it at 8:30 p.m."

Carolyn explained that Hal Belser, the pageant choreographer in Los Angeles, has taught her some flamenco steps and added a matador cape. "My talent is me," Carolyn said. "It gives me pride and confidence for the other competitions."

She found the rehearsals — her first was Monday — go much faster in this gargantuan hall here, in Atlantic City.

All the girls are wearing fall fashions here — it was explained that in Atlantic City after Labor Day, nobody wears summer clothes. They are something less than comfortable in the 80-degree weather.

Carolyn spent part of Labor day making television tapes on the Miss America pageant for six California television channels, including KRON-TV.

Hollywood Victimizes 2 American Legends

By HENRY SHAIN

In these tumultuous times American Institutions have been attacked unmercifully. Motherhood, Congress, apple pie—nothing is sacred anymore. The latest victim of this trend is the legend of the American folk heroes, Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday, as portrayed in Frank Perry's "Doc." The film is currentl playing on the Peninsula.

Hollywood has tortured history for many years for the sake of money, time, salability, and other such expediencies. Wyatt Earp, whether played by Henry Fonda ("My Darling Clementine"), Burt Lancaster ("The Gunfight at OK Corral"), or Hugh O'Brien on television, was always pictured as a handsome virile man chock full of integrity, courage, and vitamin E. Frank Perry colors him as a mousy, cowardly creep who murders for political and economic gain. Wyatt Earp is played by Harris Yulin who looks more like Don Knotts than Burt Lancaster.

Doc Holliday, the tubercular gunman and doctor of dentistry, has never been pictured as a kindly sort. Stacy Keach's portrayal makes him more cruel and grim than past accounts. Stacy Keach has a distinct blank stare which makes one feel he was stoned throughout the picture. Keach is a talented stage actor who has not found his niche on the screen perhaps, because of the poor films in which he has starred. ("End of the Road" and "The Travelling Executioner.")

Not that her presence is really necessary, but Faye Dunaway plays the infamous Katie Elder. She survives a gas attack on the Arizona desert to become Tombstone's most popular prostitute. While she is dancing at the local cantina with a prospective client, Doc stops the music. Their eyes meet across a crowded room, and the mariachi band breaks into a minuet waltz. Henceforth, Doc and Katie live happily together, at least until the end of the movie, notwithstanding the fact that she burns down the opium den where Doc finds relief for his tuberculosis.

The story of "Doc" begins just before our two heroes meet in Tombstone and engage the Clantons in that famous fight at the OK Corral. The script by Pete Hamill is a bit ridiculous and cliche-ridden. Hamill and Perry seem to have combined all that was corny from the old fashioned western with all that is excessively gross (in the name of reality) from the new trend of movie making. Technically, the color is poor and the editing is choppy and uneven. "Doc" is advertised as a new kind of western, but it is actually a pretentious bore from a director who is capable of much better.

Wedding Reception And Birthday Party Combine

August 29 was a day that Pacifica's Gust family will not soon forget. It was a "double-header" celebration — a wedding and a birthday. The day started with the marriage of Nick and Lorraine's son, Chuck, who wed the former Ruth Marie Carver in what was a beautiful ceremony. Following their vows, the newlyweds headed for Nick's at Rockaway Beach in a vintage Rolls Royce. The restaurant, which was closed to the public from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m., was the site of a lavish reception with almost 1500 guests attending. Guests were treated to drinks, unlimited champagne and a sumptuous buffet. Music for dancing was provided by Jimmy Payer (he's the regular organist here) and the Rockaway Stompers, with vivacious Mary Ann Hay sitting in on vocals. Then followed the second part of the day's celebration. The new groom announced the birthday of his mother. Whereby, the strolling troubadour from the nearby Papagayo Room sang "Happy Birthday" to Lorraine, with the guests joining in. Then the Gust family and their guests took to the dance floor. No exceptions. Nick, looking handsome in a tux, danced his beautiful daughter, Kathy, while Chuck ushered his radiant mother through the paces. When the bride and groom departed for their honeymoon (destination unknown), the wedding reception quickly changed into a full-scale natal celebration for Lorraine. A massive cake was wheeled out, and the music and dancing continued on.

GRACIOUS HOSPITALITY by Edith Lehr and hubby Lew have played a large part in the fantastic success of Lew Lehr's Steak House, in San Francisco's Marina District, over the past 13 years. The Lehr's personally supervise the operation of this famed restaurant, where extra choice steaks, any size, are cut to the patron's order.

Christmas Every Day for Park Ave. Tours Patrons

It doesn't matter if you're driving your own car or travelling by scheduled or chartered bus, Park Avenue Tours has a package deal to the Nevada fun strip that is guaranteed to save you money. Reno, Lake Tahoe or Las Vegas, you name the destination, and Park Avenue Tours will take care of the entire excursion. Bonuses and refunds depend on the length of stay. "It's Christmas every day!" . . . Why not join the brunch bunch at Shipwreck Kelly's, Airport Marina Hotel, Burlingame, this Sunday. Bring your crew to this well-favored Airport Strip hotel for a grand Sunday Champagne Brunch, which is served from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. An array of buffet tempters will be prepared by a master craftsman of the kitchen for your selection, says General Manager Larry Rickart. Although not necessary, it's a good idea to make reservations. See you after church? . . . Mealtime suggestion: Minestrone soup served at the J & G Restaurant, "Where the best of friends meet." The restaurant section is now back in full swing, and co-owners Guido Bianchina and Joe Selmi are dividing their time between attending to lounge and restaurant patrons and planning ahead for the baseball playoffs.

Scotty Campbell's Famous Cuisine

When a restaurant maintains its standards without compromising in trying times like these, then you know you've found a truly good restaurant. And when that restaurant is winning awards when other restaurants are raising their prices, or closing their doors to the hard times, you can be doubly assured of satisfaction.

Scotty Campbell's of Redwood City is such a restaurant. This Peninsula landmark was recently recognized by the National Restaurant Association and the Golden Gate Association for its superb menu design, and another plaque from the Ford Times attests to all-around quality.

What makes Scotty Campbell's so unique? The most obvious answers to that question are the people who run the restaurant: Theresa and Bud Urban, Theresa's ebullient sister Mary Lou Francis and Mrs. Helen Trainor, mother of both Theresa and Mary Lou. They have given entirely new meaning to that old phrase "all in the family." Mary Lou serves as the year-round hostess, conveying a warmth and sincerity other restaurant owners would be hard-put to duplicate.

HOTEL EXECUTIVE Les Sasada is the new General Manager of San Mateo's Hillsdale Inn. Sasada first entered the hotel business while attending high school in Wisconsin. His 31 years of prior experience includes executive positions with several of the major hotel chains in this country, including Holiday Inn and Fred Harvey.

Roast Prime Beef Special

The Benjamin Franklin Hotel's executive chef, Tom Delano, has introduced a Monday and Wednesday special of Roast Prime Ribs of Beef, which is certain to please the most discriminating of palates. Served with vegetables, potatoes, dessert and beverage, the prime rib is one of several entrees which are changed daily, in addition to the regular a la carte menu. These daily chef's specials are most unique — both luncheon and dinner are the same price. In the adjacent Club Seville, patrons pour their own jumbo cocktails for just 75 cents per pitcher . . . A fascinating tourist attraction is Fisherman's Wharf, and probably the most successful restaurant on the Wharf is the world-famous A. Sabella's. Besides attracting countless tourists, this San Francisco dining spa is the target for business meetings, banquets and large conventions. Accommodating up to 400 persons for one gathering, the entire second floor of A. Sabella's is devoted to private meeting facilities . . . One of the hits of the current revue at Finocchio's is Ruseell Reed, an agile 395-pound entertainer. Russ tops his "I Don't Wanna Get Thin" with a great rendition of the oldie, "You Gotta See Your Mamma Every Night" that receives loud applause.

Yolanda's Football Package

After serving breakfast and providing a bus for fans to the recent 49er-Charger encounter, John Hutchinson, manager of Yolanda's Terminal Cafe, has decided to do the same throughout the football season for all of the 49er home games. One of the main reasons behind this program's success is the reasonable price — $4.50 per person. The tab includes breakfast, a drink and round-trip bus fare to Candlestick Park. Plus, fans park their cars free in Yolanda's spacious parking lot . . . Bob Tellez, general manager of Charlie Brown's in Redwood City, reports a change in the restaurant's Sunday brunch hours. Beginning Sunday, the new brunch hours will be 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The most expensive item on the moderately priced brunch menu is New York Steak and Eggs for just $2.95 . . . As everyone knows, Bertolucci's in South San Francisco has always been a haven for celebrities. Seen dining here one recent Sunday was actress Loretta Young. Among those dining with the lovely screen star was Loretta's beautiful daughter, who has an uncanny resemblance to her mother.

Food-Entertainment-Dancing

Frank Martinelli and his crew at The Beach House seem to have it all together. With the addition of the new Garden Room, Martinelli offers all the needed ingredients for an entire evening of food, entertainment and dancing. Even on the traditionally slow nights (Sunday and Monday), this San Mateo spot is usually jammed with fun-lovers. Currently providing the dance music (through a quadrasonic sound system) is a group called Festival . . . The Taco La Paz in Belmont is still running an extraordinary special on Cokes. Manager Steve Croker has tabbed large Cokes at 30 cents — and that price includes the glass. This is an inexpensive way to build a glass collection, as you can buy as many as you like . . . Live entertainment, featuring the dance sounds of The Inn Beats, is always a weekend attraction at Cardonis' Half Moon Bay Inn. This historic coastside landmark, located in downtown Half Moon Bay, also serves a wide variety of dinners, with Eastern prime rib being a weekend special.

Hard Working Crew Is Behind County's Beauty Pageant Success

By LIN DAY

While the nation looks to Atlantic City, where a San Mateo County girl, for the first time, wears the banner of Miss California in the quest for Miss America, a valiant little band rests in San Mateo and awaits the outcome of a dozen years of hard work.

They are the few who have survived many years of trying before winning the state prize they sought, a tightly knit group of about ten people who are the Miss San Mateo County Pageant.

This year has been a year of triumph across the board for them, with three of their girls wearing state beauty crowns — both Miss Californias, and Miss Arizona.

Several months ago, when this year's crop paraded before preliminary judges at a local elementary school, it looked like it would be a something less than sensational year. The judges and pageant group retired to a coffee shop afterwards more grim than buoyant.

But, remembering how a chubby amateur had been molded into a tossup finalist in the state contest the year before, they set to work to apply the finesse and skill they have acquired. And they did it again.

The secrets they have learned along the way have made the San Mateo Pageant committee the hottest thing in the California beauty pageant game. San Mateo's crew has produced nine top-ten finalists in 11 years. It has placed San Mateo county girls once as third runner-up, twice as second runner-up and twice as first runner-up during the same period, in statewide competition, as well as winning this year. No other county even comes close to this record.

Its girls have four times won the preliminary swim suit competition, in addition to Carolyn Stoner's winning both preliminary competitions this year.

This year, Kim Hobson, who went through the entire training program last year, is Miss California in the Miss Universe contest; Cece Sklan, who did the same thing, will compete as Miss Arizona against Carolyn at Atlantic City.

Actually, the San Mateo County group, in an unusual swap arrangement, contributed training and expertise last year to the Miss Hayward candidate — and saw her go on to win the state title.

If the results sound glamorous, they come out of a lot of hard work, attention to detail, and dedication, a ritual so arduous that it has contributed to the melting away of the more than three dozen Jaycees who originally handled the pageant to less than the fingers of both hands.

The San Mateo Junior Chamber of Commerce undertook the pageant first in 1958, when Charlotte Ranch won it and went on to become Miss Congeniality at Santa Cruz.

From the beginning, Frank Rochex, Jr., was the sparkplug that fired up the Jaycee group. Along with Peter Gumina, Rochex led an active crew who built sets, organized barbecues, swim parties, and trips, and worked endless hours, to develop the pageant.

While the Jaycee wives took the girls in hand, the men worked with hammer and saw, borrowed lights and electronic equipment, and developed elaborate sets.

By 1965, the pageant operation had grown to such proportions that it dwarfed, in numbers, budget and time consumed, all of the activities of the San Mateo Jaycees put together.

That year it was decided to reorganize it separately along the same lines as the parent pageant in Atlantic City. Led by Gumina and Rochex, a series of meetings set up by-laws, elected a board of directors, elected Gumina of San Mateo, president; and set up a group of persons known as "patrons" who supported the pageant.

They were a shirtsleeve crew. Joining with the College of San Mateo KCSM-TV crew, they put on elaborate televised productions for three years.

They placed in the top ten each of those years. In 1965, English-born Georgina Hillerby, made an American citizen by Act of Congress (sponsored by the late J. Arthur Younger) so that she could compete, won the first runner-up spot at Santa Cruz.

In 1966, Karin Sainsbury of San Mateo was, like Georgina, a preliminary swimsuit winner and top ten finalist. In 1967, Barbara Sams of South San Francisco again made the top ten.

The crew's numbers continued to diminish as the years and circumstances took their toll, despite their success at Santa Cruz. In 1968, only six girls bothered to enter. And only two sponsors, including Fred Williams of San Mateo, who lent his Hillsdale Inn to the project, stood behind the crew.

Nevertheless, it produced another top-ten finalist in Jeanne Haught of Redwood City, went on to win the drama award in the state contest with Deborah Henley of San Bruno, then came back to win the popular verdict and second place last year with Susan Damante.

There have been many social events. At one time, all of the girls turned out as hostesses to a Press Club and United Crusade function; every year has a traditional barbecue and games party, and there have been swim parties and other sessions over the years.

Today, with patrons diminished almost to only the board of directors, Rochex as president, Joan Ward as vice president, Jan Kester as secretary, Bob Masciola as treasurer and Bob Kestler as executive director, along with Louise as associate producer and chaperone and Lois Masciola have kept things alive.

When Carolyn Stoner of Belmont walks down that New Jersey runway, this will be the backup crew. Mrs. Gumina will be there, as will the Kestlers and Susan Jean Damante. The others will be at their TV sets.

This year, confronted with the reality that there just aren't enough bodies left to man all the tasks, the San Mateo County Pageant directors sat down with the County Board of Supervisors and Fair officials to discuss combining the Dream Girl contest with the pageant.

The supervisors were polite and friendly but not enthused. They agreed to set up a joint committee of the three organizations, and went their way. No committee meeting was ever called.

The pageant group might have done better with the Council of Mayors, who started to pass a resolution supporting the county winner this year, then deferred it so they could pass another later. The mayors made it plain a few months ago they like what they see.

Today, the chain of success of the year may have changed it all. The directors are beginning to hear from all sorts of people who want to participate. There is a bumper crop of young beauties in the wings, and all sorts of talent showing up.

The pageant group, however, is not interested merely in establishing San Mateo County as a beauty center, however much that might please the Chamber of Commerce.

Jan Kestler puts it this way:

"Today, the Miss San Mateo County Pageant is a non-profit civic organization whose purpose is the promotion and extension of the Miss San Mateo County Pageant for the cultural and economic advancement of the county, and the development and growth of the pageant."

It provides a showcase, she says, for young women "to display their talents and to gather to share a mutual experience that will increase their poise and self confidence. It leads to outstanding personal and educational (scholarship) awards."

This summer, 200 San Mateans turned out in black tie formality to welcome home Miss California, at the Villa Hotel. State Senator Arlen Gregorio, and State Assemblyman Dixon Arnett joined in laudatory speeches.

On the sidelines, as always, were the faithful few, their job done. After 14 years, they had put San Mateo's girl onto the boardwalk at Atlantic City.

Local Girl Arrives at Pageant

Carolyn Stoner, San Mateo county's Miss California, arrived in Atlantic City, New Jersey last Sunday among the contestants in the 1971 Miss America pageant.

Checking in at the Sheraton Deauville hotel on the famed east coast boardwalk, she found herself tightly scheduled for the week ahead, which culminates in the world's most famous beauty contest, Saturday night.

Miss Stoner is in the alpha group of contestants, who will display their talent on Wednesday, compete in swim suits Thursday, and pose in evening gowns on Friday.

Her interview with the contest judges, that critical session in which each girl attempts to convince half a dozen strangers that she is as witty, intelligent, and personable as Miss America should be, is also set for Friday.

Meanwhile, there is little time to worry. Today, contestants will register, and tonight is the first rehearsal for Saturday night's pageant in Atlantic City's Convention Hall.

"It's so huge, it gives you chills to look at it," said Susan Damante, last year's Miss San Mateo County, who accompanied Miss Stoner eastward.

Traveling with Miss Stoner were chaperone Louise Gumina, and San Mateo County pageant executive director Bob Kestler, and Jane Kestler, pageant secretary.

Last night, they attended the pageant's first event, a mix and mingle dinner, after arriving in Atlantic City by limousine from the airport at Philadelphia.

Miss Damante says San Mateo county residents may send greetings or good wishes to Miss Stoner, at the Sheraton Deauville.

Rabies Found in Bats

The existence of rabies among wild animals in San Mateo was confirmed again today.

A rabid bat, the third this year, has been delivered to the county's Public Health Laboratory.

Humane Society officers now assume that all bats are potentially rabid, and that any bat which is found grounded and sick, probably has rabies and should not be touched.

People are being warned not to handle bats, but to call the Humane Society to have them picked up for the Public Health Lab.

Animal control officers say it is likely that other wild animals will be found to have rabies, also, especially skunks, possums, foxes and bobcats.

They expect San Mateo County to be named a "rabies endemic area," later this year, and to require all dogs to get rabies shots before licensing, next year.

Public Health officials say there have been no rabies cases among cats or dogs in this county since 1948. They expect no risk of rabies from either animal, or from pet guinea pigs or hamsters.

Anyone bitten by skunks, possums, foxes, or bobcats, must have anti-rabies treatment unless the animal can be brought into the Public Health laboratory for examination, officials said.

Grass Fire Slows Cars on Bayshore

Commuter traffic on Bayshore Freeway was tied up for nearly three hours Sunday afternoon as heavy smoke from burning marsh grass on the west side of the freeway between the airport and the San Bruno overpass blew across all lanes of traffic.

Firemen from the State Division of Forestry, who were assisted by San Francisco firemen from the airport in a three hour fight to stop the fire, reported smoke was so thick across the highway it slowed traffic down as much as a heavy tule fog.

Firemen said three acres on the west side of the freeway and between the Southern Pacific tracks were burned before the fire was controlled. The first trucks were called to the scene at 4:10 p.m., and the last firemen were not released until 7:15 p.m.

California Highway Patrol cars were dispatched to the scene to control traffic.

Bus Contract Order Told

Superior Judge Melvin E. Cohn has ordered the Hillsborough and Jefferson (Daly City) elementary school districts to award student transportation contracts to Greyhound Bus Company.

Greyhound was low bidder in both districts to provide transportation services for both districts, but the respective boards of trustees denied the contracts on the basis that the company failed to meet such State Education Code specifications as warning lights and using yellow colored buses.

In his ruling, Judge Cohn upheld code exceptions which provide that a public carrier operating on a regular schedule and not used exclusively for transportation of school children can be awarded a contract by a school district.

Marine Gets Airport Post

Marine Col. Richard B. Newport has been named secretary to the San Francisco Airports Commission.

His appointment completes the commission's staff.

Since the Airports Commission was created by San Francisco supervisors September 1, 1970, the job of secretary has been filled temporarily by Emmett Smith, the airport's assistant deputy director of business and finance.

Coast Geology Survey Asked

County Manager M. D. Tarshes has asked the State Division of Mines and Geology to survey the geological hazard and define the threat to existing building and planned developments in the area west of the Half Moon Bay Airport from Pillar Point north for three miles.

Post-Times Writer

EDWARD TOOTHMAN IS the former chief of police of Oakland. He is also one of the most respected law enforcement officers in the nation and was on the President's Commission on Crime. At present Ed is an advisor to the Police Officers Standards and Training agency in Sacramento.

BECAUSE OF THE LATTER he was invited to come before the Colma City Council (officially the title is "City of the Town of Colma" formerly known as Lawndale). Don't ask him or this humble columnist why he was asked to travel 162 miles roundtrip to meet with the Colma Council. From all reports, most of the elected officials paid little or no attention to anything he had to say about police protection in that community of 500 living souls.

AND FROM ALL appearances (judging by the minutes kept at the meeting and witnesses) mayor Raymond Ottoboni Sr. couldn't wait for Toothman to finish his advice and head back to Sacramento. Could it be that Toothman's advice didn't agree with the mayor's outlook on what makes a "great" police department? To attempt to reason the events of Tuesday afternoon August 31, 1971 would be tantamount to trying to figure out what happened to one's favorite thoroughbred at Bay Meadows after you've placed a bundle on the nose — and at least on person in Colma knows what we mean by that last remark!

TOOTHMAN HAD THE NERVE, the outright audacity, to suggest in a public meeting before the council and just EVERYONE that Colma was too small to support its own police force. He advised the whole thing be farmed out to one of the surrounding communities — SUCH AS THE SOUTH CITY P.D.

That must have touched a sore spot. A feasibility study could be conducted free by P.O.S.T. if the city is willing to wait. There is a lineup for similar studies from other cities. Another organization that sometimes funds such project is the KORO Foundation.What it all boiled down to was Colma decided to wait and let P.O.S.T. do it.

A BIT OF LEVITY was introduced at the meeting. Councilman Wallace Honeywell suggested Colma might consider annexing to South City. Even the mayor chuckled at this remark. What Mayor Ottoboni did NOT find humorous were those persons at the meeting who wanted to say something.

From now on if a person wants the floor instead of the door at a Colma meeting they had better write to city clerk Blanche Lagomarsino FIRST.

And if the mayor allows it they will get all of five minutes to speak. Someone better whisper in the mayor's ear that the Constitution has a section about "Freedom of Speech." Or was that what city attorney Robert Cornell informed hizzoner after attorney Bill Schumacher was denied the floor several times during the public (???) meeting.

BITS AND PIECES — Daly City policeman Rich Brewer (the guy that rides the putt putt around town and put puts tickets on cars, had his own wheels stolen while he was bowling the other p.m. That's the second stolen car Rich has suffered. Where's the justice we ask? . . . We recall a book authored by Richard Zimmerman about Japanese-American relocation camps of WWII "fame." That teacher in South City isn't the first and only as reported.

PLANS FOR THAT complex of deluxe apartments to be built by Doelger Corporation in the Lake Merced Blvd.-Brotherhood Way area on San Francisco Golf Club property is progressing nicely. Waiting for S.F. to rezone property and it'll be "go."

REMEMBER WE TOLD you folks in Daly City to "take it to the computor" if you had a gripe concerning your water bill? Well, Ben Albrecht just got the water bill for his Fairway Drive digs and it came to a whopping $1,865. We happen to know Ben just doesn't use that much water. Ah, what we mean is he doesn't DRINK that much water. That is . . . forget it. Take it to the computor, Ben.

SAN BRUNO LIONS are having a golf happening at Crystal Springs on Monday, Oct. 4. Produced by Hal Gevertz, the happening will feature Lions members and their guests. The only "musts" are that duffers bring plenty of golf balls and a set of what passes for clubs.

And they should "look like golfers," the publicity script reads. Still time to get up a foursome and go. The money helps worthy causes and there are plenty of great gifts. End of plug.

JIM O'CONNER HANDED over the gavel to incoming chairman of the North County Council of Cities attorney George Corey last week in Brisbane. Corey is expected to furnish his own aspirin.

WE WERE SADDENED TO hear of the death of Harold Riley husband of Wilma, one of the nice people who work in the Finance Department at the D.C. City Hall.

Modern Care for Alcoholics

By BARBARA BLADEN

You usually can't tell alcoholics by sight. They look and act like other people. Their problems are no different than their neighbors but it's how they cope, by drinking to forget, that sets them apart.

This social chasm is tremendous and soon they see themselves as being very different from others, to the extent of guilt, despair, and physical breakdown.

There is no medical cure for alcoholism, no drug or surgery that will alleviate the suffering. And because the problem is so complex, Einor Nordby, administrator of the Crystal Springs Rehabilitation Center, 35 Tower Road, San Mateo, treats it as a disability, not a moral judgmental or criminal problem.

Western European countries have recognized this for a long time. But California has only progressed to that thinking recently. The county facility is unique in its rehabilitation of alcoholics, who constitute one-third of the patients.

The first patient admitted in 1876 was an alcoholic. Today they range in age from 20 to 45. Now, they're called members, not patients, and the program is voluntary, although referrals are made from private physicians, psychiatrists and hospitals.

Gone are the days of forlorn-looking victims shuffling through corridors in blue smocks, the aura of anguish and self-recrimination pervading the wards. At Crystal Springs you can't tell the staff from the members, or the volunteers from the social workers, without an introduction.

The grounds and workshops resemble more a community center. Groups are engaged in therapy discussions or psycho-drama role playing. Well dressed women sit smilingly at looms or in the pottery class. Nattily attired men are employed at restoring furniture, repairing television sets, leather craft or working in an outdoor nursery from which the public can purchase plants and trees.

By the time they arrive at Crystal Springs, many have reached the lowest point of self-destruction. What preceded their voluntary entry may have been Agnew State Mental Hospital, jail, unemployment, divorce, broken families, and-or the Alcoholics Anonymous program.

Operating on the concept that an alcoholic's self-image of worthlessness and failure must be replaced by the belief that he is a valuable member of the human family, the members must first enter into a written contract to live in a family group for at least 100 days. And they must obey the rules and seriously consider the recommendations made by their peers, those who are experiencing the same involvement.

"This is a painful process for many who have never opened up and faced reality. They've bottled up these problems and layered them over with alcohol, the oldest tranquilizer in the world," Nordby explains.

Since excessive alcohol is physically damaging, the members are treated medically only minimally in the beginning. They usually suffer from malnutrition or liver disorders and in many cases tuberculosis. After the 30-day orientation period, when they're under close medical supervision and their minds are clear enough to make a commitment, the real restoration of self-esteem and commitment to others and themselves begins.

"Our treatment program means to be fundamentally honest. Here they discover other people who have gone through the same thing and are trying to make it. Members must accept the emotional burden of helping another person. They all have to learn a new set of responses, stay with it and work it out," the director says.

Family groups of ten elect their own spokesman. Individuals are not allowed to make decisions, it has to be by majority rule. They live together 24 hours a day. No one sits around staring into space or lies in bed.

If one member begins to slip away, the group intervenes. He may be experiencing approval for the first time in his life when his group sincerely tells him he's a good guy.

"Rehabilitation is a change that takes place within the human personality. The old concept was that alcoholism was medical. Social and environmental pressures were not given consideration. It's now a worldwide awakening," Nordby says.

"We don't spend the time unraveling bad experiences. That's water under the bridge. We build a new personality, strengthened with new habits of response and disappointments."

None of these people are alone in their dilemma. There are approximately eight million alcoholics in the United States that have reached the serious stage.

The life style at the bright, cheery, fresh air-filled facility is that nine people share a dormitory, each having lockers and trunks and personal effects surrounding them. They are expected to work 15 hours a week, with proceeds from the sale of this work going into a Patients Activity Fund.

Individuals don't get the money but will share in the satisfaction of selling their work at the annual Bazaar held in the dining room from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. October 15. A buffet lunch and dinner is served to the public, admitted free of charge to the bazaar. Profits are used to purchase new game tables, movies, a new kiln or a piano.

The public has been encouraged to attend the Bazaar which last year grossed $6,000.

Recreational and social events are enthusiastically attended by members. These range from dress rehearsal performances at Hillbarn Theatre to Circle Star Theater attractions. Regular outings include a weekly Ladies Day movie at the San Mateo Theater, ball games, and shopping jaunts to nearby centers.

There are bingo games, church services, bowling, tea parties, a monthly birthday party at which Joe Dimmock and The Lo-Notes perform, creative art classes, vocational training for janitorial and kitchen work in the community and a nurses aide program.

There are 150 individual volunteers to the daily programs who augment the activities of such civic and church groups as Friendly Visiting Service of the Assistance League, Red Cross, College of San Mateo Community Services, Sisters of Mary, San Mateo Women's Club, Handi-Capables of the Catholic Social Service, and the Multiple Sclerosis women headed by Mrs. Albert Schwabacher.

No one but the administrator knows who pays for treatment and who doesn't. For members, their common bond is a need to re-establish a sense of worth and importance. Staff and administration sees that they find it in a relaxed, caring atmosphere.

The Court Ruling on School Funding

Nothing is harder to destroy than silly ideas that have been around for a long time. These become entangled with conceptions of the status quo and acquired undeserved credence. They are a kind of intellectual napalm that stick to the body politic until incredible harm has been done.

Last week, the California Supreme Court may have put to death a very silly idea indeed. It required an act of intelligence and courage, but even so, the idea isn't completely dead yet.

The silliness in question is the absurd concept that local property taxes form a suitable financial base for public education. Statistics cited by the court make the foolishness plain. Findings of Legislative Analyst, A. Alan Post, disclosed that, considered on a statewide basis, the assessed valuation per child varied from a low of $103 to a peak of $952,156, or a ratio of nearly 1 to 10,000 The court also noted that Beverly Hills is able to spend $1,231 per student on a tax rate of $2.3 while Baldwin Park, with a school tax of $5.4, can raise only $577 per child. School tax rates vary across the state from 15 cents to $6.75 per $100 of assessed valuation.

With 1,076 school districts spread like a crazy quilt across the diversity of California, the idea of local financial support is not only silly, it is cruel. By the accident of family and residence, one child receives a good education under the present system, and another dangerously close to none. It amounts to a game of educational monopoly, with quality largely dependent upon the presence of important and tax-producing pieces of private property within a given district.

As children and the young are our most important resource, it seems strange that it took 37 years and a California Supreme Court decision to call the turn. Even so, the battle is not over. The case may be appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, and the politicians might spoil the opportunity it represents, in any event.

Courts and cases being what they are, the final judicial resolution of the problem remains uncertain. True enough, the California Court leans strongly on state constitutional provisions, and by resting on economic discrimination instead of a vaguer criterion of "educational needs," carefully avoided the precise effect of earlier decisions of the United States Supreme Court. But the underlying risks of sweeping change of the financing of all local government functions (police, fire, sewers, etc.) leave the legal position in some doubt.

Political relief is something else again. The California Legislature has refused to grapple with the problem for years. While big issues often frighten lawmakers, it seems that with the catalytic prodding of the courts, the Legislature should move toward a statewide property tax, whether or not the instant decision is appealed, or for that matter, stands as law.

While the recent history of legislative attitudes concerning this issue gives scant assurance of action, hope is in order. For the decision signals a time for wisdom and of opportunity — a once in decades chance to establish a fair and sensible means of financing public education.

The dangers in Sacramento are great. Some will be tempted to devise plans that will perpetuate the old inequities. Others will seek stifling statewide control of school administration as a quid pro quo of statewide funding.

Neither course would be responsible. What is needed is a truly equalized spread of burden and benefit in combination with local control and management of school affairs. If the Legislature considers standards, these should remain as broad guide lines that leave local ingenuity and innovation in position to seek excellence in each district.

California could, as the result of this decision, lead the nation on a new course in dealing with the realities of modern education. Should the present favorable circumstances for meaningful change be botched, either by those who long for the old and unfair ways, or by those who yearn for large statewide plans, we will have lost a once in a lifetime opportunity.

BETTER BUSINESS

By LORENE BEASLEY
Better Business Bureau

The consumer "cooling off" bill has been signed into law. Assembly Bill 289, in consumer terms means that you have three days after a home solicitation contract has been signed to change your mind. The seller under this law has to give back your down payment or trade-in and, if he doesn't come to pick up his merchandise within 20 days, it is yours.

In bill form it states . . . the buyer has the right to cancel a home solicitation contract or offer until midnight of the third calendar day — excluding Sunday — after the day on which the buyer signs an agreement or offer to purchase.

Cancellation occurs when the buyer gives written notice of cancellation to the seller at the address specified in the agreement.

Notice of cancellation, if given by mail, is effective when deposited in the mail, properly addressed and with postage paid.

If you cancel and you have already made some payment to the seller, the seller is entitled to retain five per cent of the cash price but in no event may he retain more than $15.

If you cancel, the seller must return to you any payment made, less cancellation fee, and any goods or other property, in substantially as good condition as when received, or a sum equal to the amount of the trade-in allowance, and any note or other evidence of indebtedness.

After cancelling the seller is entitled to receive back from you — at your address — any goods delivered by him to you, providing he has returned any payments and goods or other property received from you.

If the seller does not call for his goods at your address within 20 days after you give notice of cancellation, you may keep them as your own.

If any goods sold under any home solicitation contract is so affixed to real property as to become a part thereof, the buyer cannot cancel if subsequent to signing such contract, he has sold or encumbered such real property to a bona fide purchaser who was not a party to such sale.

These provisions do not apply to a contract which is executed in connection with emergency repairs or services that are necessary for the immediate protection of persons or real or personal property.

The bill is effective 61 days after the close of the legislation.

TV Programmers' Problems

Let the critics of television march to the book "Electronic Drama" and let them read Hubbel Robinson's introduction before they view another program.

Sam Chandler

Citing some letters to illustrate the problems that face TV programmers, Robinson shows that television must cater to both the advertiser and the dramatist. The advertiser, on one hand, "spends money to win friends and influence people." The dramatist, on the other, writes "to portray human conditions, to reflect the times, to weigh the values of society, and to pass judgments."

Thus an ideological gap between the sponsor and the artist is created. This gap, however wide, must be spanned before a program can be successful.

The cost of drama is another hazard that faces television. Still another is the amount of reality or romance that the public will accept, and still others are the barriers of prejudice, intolerance and ignorance that are present in the mass audience of a television program.

Sometimes the sum total of TV's problems seems to point to television drama's total oblivion. Yet over the years some great plays have appeared to show that television can develop an are that will "articulate the problems of our times as well as jog our minds."

"Electronic Drama" is an anthology of the scripts of some of the best television programs that were produced during the 1960s. Among them is Ellison Carroll's tender play, "Teacher, Teacher" which portrays the problems of a retarded child in a world peopled by adults. As the play proceeds the adults learn a fundamental fact. In caring for an unfortunate person they can lose their own hangups and draw together as compassionate human beings.

Then there is "My Sweet Charlie," a play that reveals how people of opposite race, color, and heredity can break through their own barriers of intolerance and misunderstanding. Although the play ends with one of its main characters falling victim to ingrained ignorance and prejudice, "My Sweet Charlie" is a testament to the innate goodness of human nature.

"Who Do You Kill?" is another play that treats the problems of racial prejudice. Produced as part of George C. Scott's series, "East Side, West Side," it is filled with mistrust and misunderstanding that must fall away when human beings meet in situations that demand their cooperation. This note is uttered in the last scene when a white man says to a black man, "I will say this. I believe women are women, and babies are babies — no matter what color they are. And when you lose a baby, the only thing that means anything is the love of the person closest to you. I think you would tell that to me, too, Joe, if my child died." "Who Do You Kill?" shows that men are brothers.

There are nine plays in "Electronic Drama." Each shows television in its finest moments. Each shows that television drama can overcome the problems that beset it to become a medium of great art.

4400 Workers Rehired by Lockheed-Calif.

BURBANK (BW) — Lockheed-California Co. has rehired 4,400 employes, nearly half of those laid off from the L-1011 Tristar program last February when Rolls-Royce went into receivership and disrupted production on the wide-bodied trijet.

Thursday — one month after Congress approved a federally guaranteed loan to enable Lockheed to keep the Tristar in production — employment on the L1011 program totals 12,380 at Lockheed plants in Southern California, Georgia, Oklahoma and Nirth Dakota, said Charles S. Wagner, president of Lockheed-California Co.

He added that L-1011 employees now represent one-half of the total Lockheed-California employment of 24,096 persons.

"We expect to continue a gradual build-up of L-1011 employes during the remainder of this year, reaching 15,000 in the first quarter of 1972," Wagner said.

Some 9,200 Tristar workers in Burbank and Palmdale were laid off last February, of a total of 17,000 then employed on the program.

At Palmdale, site of the L-1011 final assembly and flight test center, employment of the program is now 4,422, having climbed in recent weeks to more than two-thirds of the peak of about 6,000 reached just prior to February.

Three Lockheed-California Co. feeder plants, where L-1011 subassemblies are built, currently employ 254 workers, or some 60 per cent of the pre-February total.

These are in the Watts-Willowbrook district of Los Angeles, 123 persons; McAlester, Okla., 77 employes, and Minot, N.D., 54 employes.

At Lockheed-Georgia Co., where the Tristar's empennage is built, some 20 employes are working on the L-1011 and this number is to increase to approximately 400 by mid-1972.

To date, Lockheed has completed assembly of six Tristars, including four flying aircraft and two ground-test vehicles. The first three L-1011's to enter the flight test program reached a total of 500 flying hours this week.

Thirteen other L-1011's are now in various stages of completion in the final assembly building at Palmdale.

Completion of the flight test series and federal certification for airline service are scheduled for next April, Wagner said.

Pre-School Center Slated

A new pre-school child care center is scheduled to open next January, but registration is open now.

The new center will be at the Church of the Nazarene, 2425 South Norfolk Street, San Mateo. It is offered especially for working mothers and parents need not be Church of Nazarene members to use the service, according to Rev. A. F. Hayes, the pastor.

Registration deadline is January 15, 1972, with the center to open officially January 17, under present plans.

The center will have room for 60 children of ages two to six years and will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, Rev. Hayes said.

The church expects to obtain all necessary permits in the next few weeks, including its state license, Rev. Hayes said. Further information may be obtained by calling Rev. Hayes at the church.

BRUCE A. BEERY, vice president and controller of Crocker Bank, has been named a senior vice president, Emmett G. Solomon, board chairman and chief executive officer, has announced. Beery joined Crocker as a vice president in the controller's department in February, 1970. He became vice president and controller of the bank and vice president-treasurer of Crocker National Corp., the parent holding company, in March of that year. Beery will continue as vice president-treasurer of the parent firm.

Pillar Pt. Development Approved

The County Board of Supervisors Tuesday approved a permit for the East Basin marina development at Pillar Point Harbor.

It also authorized a grading permit for 1.7 million cubic yards of imported fill for the project.

A protest of the action was registered by attorney Dan Kane on behalf of the Committee For Green Foothills, which contended that the application for approval by the County Harbor Commission, "leaves a lot to be worked out and a lot to be desired."

Kane expressed concern that the fauna on the harbor bottom would be ruined, that water quality would be destroyed, that grading would be undertaken without controls and that placing of the fill would halt sand drift that refills eroded beaches.

James Dennis, attorney for the Harbor District, said the approvals granted by the planning commission are general in nature, that before any work is undertaken a loan must be secured form the State Department of Navigation and Ocean Development and that specific plans must be approved not only by the county, but by the Army Corps of Engineers.

In upholding the planning commission action, the board directed that any future plans submitted for the project be forwarded to the Board of Supervisors for final approval.

Pacifican Captured

Like the Canadian Mounties Pacifica police get their man — one way or another.

Officers Ted Kendrick and Ed Boll were called to the scene of a family dispute at 1632 Toledo Court Saturday.

According to a complaint, Rolan Charles Harroun, 27, had attacked his wife with a knife during a family argument.

Harroun was just leaving the house in his foreign compact car when officers arrived in two separate police cars.

They chased the suspect at high speeds through several city blocks before Officer Boll succeeded in stopping the car by cutting him off with the police car, reports indicate.

But the suspect wasn't ready to surrender yet, police said.

He stepped on the gas and allegedly tried to run down the policeman.

Officer Boll pulled his gun and shot out the left front tire as it raced past.

Some three blocks later Officer Kendrick apprehended the suspect after ramming into Harroun's car with the police vehicle, bowling it end over end.

Harroun escaped the crash uninjured.

He was booked for assault with a deadly weapon, among other charges.

The suspect's wife received a gash on her left hand.

Warning on Gas, Pilot Light Hazard

Millbrae firemen have battled five major house fires within a month that were started by gasoline fumes being ignited in a garage by a water heater pilot light.

Fire Inspector Eddie Williams said the latest incident, a $20,000 blaze, was reported a week ago when neighbors noticed smoke rolling out of the Herman Pollock home at 105 Maple Place.

"By the time we arrived," said Williams, "flames were shooting through the roof, and the garage was a raging inferno.

"It took eight firemen 30 minutes to put out the blaze, and one of them, Charles Hart, was temporarily poisoned by chlorine gas fumes, during the initial knock-down."

Williams said the poisonous fumes resulted when swimming pool chemicals were baked by the fire.

He said flames resulted from gasoline fumes being ignited by a water heater pilot light, after homeowner Herman stored a can of gasoline in the garage.

"He doesn't remember any spillage," said Williams, "but he had just had a five-gallon can filled with gas, and had taken it out of his car and stored it in the garage, shortly before the blaze."

Inspector Williams said Fireman Hart was taken to Peninsula Hospital, where he was dismissed after emergency care.

The inspector said homeowners in the city have suffered a total of $92,000 worth of damage to their homes in the past 30 days, from fires started by gasoline fumes in garages where water heaters are located.

"Two of them resulted from washing car parts, or motorcycle parts," he said, "one of them from a leaking gas line on a motorcycle.

"Our biggest problem is the use of gasoline in the garage. Mr. Herman told me he usually keeps two or three gallons of gas in the garage, to clean up oil spots."

Williams said the Millbrae Fire Department two years ago asked for a city prohibition against flame-operated heaters of any type, being placed in a garage, but was unable to win much support.

Millbrae may soon adopt an ordinance requiring flame-operated heaters to be installed at least 18 inches off the floor, he said, which would raise them above the level of low-lying puddles and fumes.

"We've got to make the public aware, not only in Millbrae, but in all neighboring cities, that using gasoline near a flame-operated heater is dangerous and expensive."

A. KIRK CONRAGAN, the director of the Josephine Randall Museum in San Francisco, will conduct a course on "Ecology in Theory and Practice" at Skyline College, San Bruno. The course will begin on Tuesday, September 21, at 7 p.m. For more information, interested people can call the college's Community Services office.

Woman Sues Because She Got Pregnant

An unmarried San Francisco woman has filed suit in Superior Court at Redwood City, charging that she became pregnant and had a baby despite taking birth control pills prescribed by a Daly City physician.

The plaintiff seeks a total of $350,000 in damages from Dr. Walter Green and from Eli Lilly Company, a pharmaceutical firm.

It is charged in the complaint, filed by attorney Carl D. Cammarata, of San Francjsco, that Dr. Green prescribed birth control pills manufactured by Lilly and known as C-Quens for the plaintiff.

The pills didn't work, it is contended, and the woman became pregnant, giving birth to a daughter in November, 1970.

The suit also charges that Dr. Green failed to advise the plaintiff of a legal means of abortion after determining that she was pregnant.

As a result of the pregnancy and birth, she suffered social humiliation, the plaintiff maintains.
